No pact - teacher strike possible

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Public schools in Romulus reopen two weeks from today and no new teacher contract has been signed, but school officials are hopeful that a strike by the 329 members of the Romulus Education Association will not be forthcoming.

After four negotiation sessions lasting over 20 hours in all, "a prevailing business-like attitude" in the contract talks was reported by Terrel M. LeCesne, personnel relations manager and chief negotiator for the school system.

"At this point I don't know, but it is certainly our goal to reach an agreement without any interruption of school. If the present atmosphere continues, I feel that that can be accomplished," LeCesne explained.

The current three-year pact between the schools and the REA will expire Aug. 30, a week from tomorrow, and school officials are hoping for another three-year contract to be signed soon.

Asked what issues are being discussed for the new contract, LeCesne replied, "Everything is up for grabs - the whole contract."

Compounding usually difficult bargaining sessions this year is the REA's inclusion in the newly-formed Wayne County Michigan Education Association (WCMEA), a 14-school district organization which hopes to gain additional leverage at the bargaining table through joint and simultaneous negotiations.

The new organization is making a concerted effort to sign up all school districts in Wayne County. If successful, the added clout at the bargaining table would greatly benefit teachers.

All of the 14 member school districts are out-Wayne County, LeCesne said. Included in the membership is the Westwood School District which has not had a new teacher contract in the last three years, he said. Westwood teachers, however, are not striking.

LeCesne admitted to the Enterprise that Romulus' inclusion in the WCMEA will make tougher bargaining, but was hopeful that a speedy solution will be found, resulting in a new three-year pact.

Romulus school district now is designated as a member of the Wayne County Michigan Education Association-National Education Association-Romulus. Abbreviated, the new membership reads WCMEA-NEA-Romulus.

Bargaining for the school system are LeCesne, Arthur McPharlin, Halecreek Elementary School principal; and Bates Landis, business manager. Heading REA negotiations is Terrel Bird, a teacher at Romulus High School.

LeCesne reported that none of the 14 members of the WCMEA have settled new contracts. Since the WCMEA was created only last May, any type of precedent toward settlement of new contracts is lacking in the bargaining format.

Ford plant blamed

Huron sues over sewage

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

For more than 10 years, Huron Township has been bristling over what it feels is unfair treatment at the hands of the Flat Rock Sewage Treatment Plant.

Since 1967 when the plant was expanded by the Wayne County Road Commission, township officials have contended the Ford Testing Center in Flat Rock has been using the lion's share of the sewage plant's facilities.

Miffed at getting cut out of sewage treatment facilities its citizens have been paying for at the rate of eight mills a year since 1967, Huron Township filed suit in June in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Named in the suit are the Wayne County Board of Public Works (present owners and operators of the sewage treatment plant), Ford Motor Co., and the city of Flat Rock.

"Ford, Flat Rock and the county public works board have been getting what is rightfully ours and what we have been paying for," contended Clerk Mary Lou Carey. She said the Flat Rock plant was expanded in 1967 to handle some 1.3 million gallons of sewage per day, and up to 1.8 million gallons a day in times of emergency, but that both figures are being exceeded daily by large amounts.

The clerk stressed that recent measurements made by the state Department of Natural Resources showed more than five million gallons of sewage going through the Flat Rock plant each day.

"There is a clause in our agreement with the county that states that the party responsible for overloading the plant's facilities will be held responsible for any further expansion that is deemed necessary," Mrs. Carey said.

She maintains that Huron Township still is not anywhere near to putting its stipulated allocation of sewage into the Flat Rock plant.

Echoing the sentiments of many people in the community, Treas. Richard F. Sullivan, who has worked hard in behalf of fair treatment for Huron in the sewage dilemma, early this month addressed the township board on the subject.

He expressed concern shared by the residents of Huron with citizens of Flat Rock over the pollution of the Huron River which carries the re-filtered sewage waters from the Flat Rock plant.

"Too long have we listened to the song of the siren of 'super sewer'. Too long have we waited for action on the part of those responsible for a solution," Sullivan declared.

Lamenting the legal recourse that Huron is seeking in the courts, the treasurer said, "We fail to understand, how an area as viable as our community's is permitted to stagnate through what we believe is ineptitude or dereliction of administrative responsibilities," he emphasized.

Stressing that there is a solution to the pollution problem, Sullivan said Huron intends "to pursue it aggressively to the highest levels of state government."

"Our economic future is at issue. The health and welfare of our people are at stake. We could not turn our back on these responsibilities," he said.

At the time that the Flat Rock plant was expanded, Mrs. Carey said new portion of the plant was expected to handle seven cubic feet per second (cfs). Of that total, 4.8 cfs was allocated to Huron, 1.6 cfs to Sumpter, 0.8 cfs to Flat Rock, and 0.5 cfs to the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

The clerk said Huron's input into the sewage plant was much less than its allocation and that Sumpter was barely into its earmarked portion.

"At that time, Ford was not even mentioned. Now it's using the biggest share, almost all of the expansion from 1967," the clerk contended.

She said Ford should be made to build its own sewage plant and "to get out of ours." She said Ford was the "only profit-making party" in the parties involved.

Mrs. Carey said she expects the case to be in the courts for a lengthy period of time.

Huron supt. lays it on the line

School millage is explained

On Sept. 10, voters in the Huron School District will be going to the polls to decide on an increase of 3.5 mills for one year. Voters sometimes have many questions about the millage, and this first of three series of questions and answers by Supt. Curtis Bartz will help clarify concerns and answer those questions.

If the general public has further questions about this millage increase, they are asked to contact the Huron superintendent at 782-2441 or 782-2442.

QUESTION:

How will the ballot read when I vote on September 10?

ANSWER:

TAX RATE LIMITATION INCREASE PROPOSITION FOR OPERATING PURPOSES

Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be assessed against all property in Huron School District, Wayne and Monroe Counties, Michigan, be increased by 3.5 mills ($3.50 on each $1,000.00) on state equalized valuation for the year 1979, for the purpose of providing additional funds for operating purposes?

QUESTION:

I hear a lot of talk about millage—what is a mill anyway?

ANSWER:

A mill is a unit of monetary value equal to 1-1000 of a dollar. For example, if your house has a value of $40,000 on today's market and a taxable value of $20,000, the cost of each mill would be $20 in taxes.

QUESTION:

Why can't schools "live within their means"?

ANSWER:

By law, schools are required to have a balanced budget. Unfortunately, like any business, schools feel the increased costs of inflation. The cost of living last year was 12.5 percent and has affected the homeowner and the schools. Buses now cost 34 percent more than they did three years ago, hospitalization insurance costs have risen by 55 percent in the last three years, and textbooks cost 27 percent more than they did three years ago.

Salaries, disability insurance, electricity, gasoline, teaching supplies—almost everything—has increased in cost, and these increased costs must be figured into school budgets. Millage requests are based on what these budgets indicate are the needs of our district.

QUESTION:

My neighbor told me the school board always keeps the special millage election a secret. Is this true?

ANSWER:

No! Under the "Open Meetings Act" decisions by a public body are made in public. The Huron Board of Education passed a resolution at the July Organizational Meeting setting the third Monday of each month for a regular board meeting. The meetings begin at 8 p.m. and are held in the board room of the Huron Elementary, 24820 Merriman Rd. The agenda is always posted on the door several days before the meeting. Decisions to be made about the school program are always done in a public meeting whether it is a regular or special board meeting.

When a special meeting is called by the president of the board, the agenda and the time of meeting are always posted in a public place at least 18 hours before the meeting. This time period meets the requirement of the law.

The public is always welcome to attend the regular and special meetings.

QUESTION:

If the 3.5 mill is approved, when will the students go back to a six-hour day?

ANSWER:

First, the laid off teachers have to be recalled and scheduling changes involving the students and buses have to be made. The change to the six-hour day would be made as soon as possible.

QUESTION:

What will the 3.5 mills be used for

in our schools?

ANSWER:

The biggest part of the 3.5 will be used to recall the 15 teachers that were laid off in June. This recall of teachers will give us a minimum educational program.

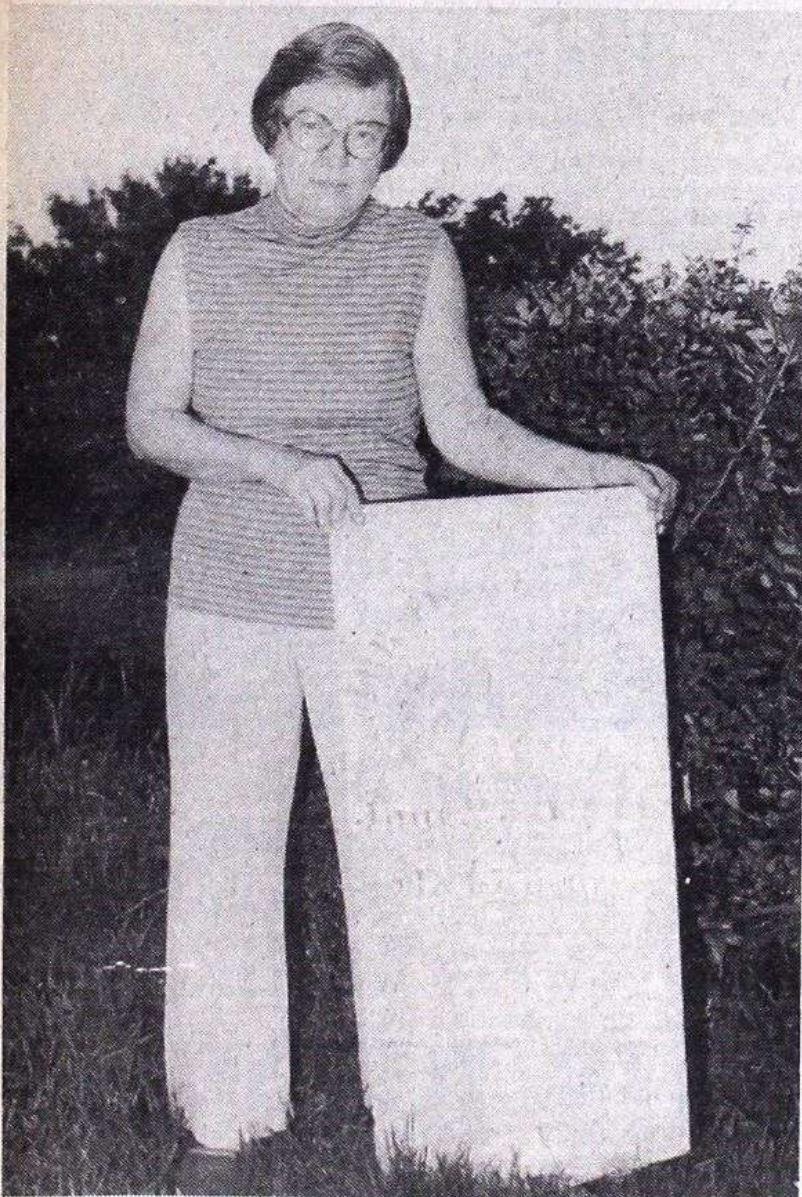

Much needed textbooks will be purchased and we will be able to restore junior high and junior varsity athletics and the extra curricular activities.

And its Depot Town

Yesteryear Heritage Festival focuses on Ypsilanti

During a period of rising prices and significant inflation, most people don't believe a pocketful of change can provide much in the way of family fun. "Not so," say promoters of the Ypsilanti Yesteryear Heritage Festival taking place this weekend.

Sponsored by the Visitors and Convention Bureau of the Ypsilanti Area Chamber of Commerce, the celebration will offer exciting activities focusing on Ypsilanti's unique historical district and Depot Town. "Something for everyone" is the bill of fare during this event and many activities are free. Highlighting the Yesteryear Festival will be Tino Wallenda, the well known highwire acrobat formerly with the famous Flying Wallendas. Performances will take place twice daily in Depot Town's Frog Island Park, beginning at 1 p.m. Friday. Working at a height of more than 50 feet without the aid of nets or safety devices, Tino presents a most thrilling routine.

Ypsilanti's abundant heritage will be on display for the public with 22 homes, churches and public buildings on tour. Tickets for the tour are available in advance or during the festival. A special treat is scheduled for Sunday when the famous Ypsilanti Water Tower offers an open house at 1 p.m.

Ypsilanti's history will be featured in many other ways besides the building tours and open houses. These include displays and exhibits in Depot Town, Downtown and Eastern Michigan University. There also will be many antique automobiles on display including the first oldsmobile built with a General Motors Hydramatic Transmission. Although the festival theme is one of history, the majority of activities are designed to entertain folks of all ages. There will be 150 booths in Depot Town featuring arts, crafts, antiques and exhibitions on quilting and glass blowing. Depot Town also is the location of continuous public stage entertainment including dancing, theatre, magic art, Dixieland jazz, barbershop quartets and Sweet Adelines, country-western music, clowns and many more entertaining acts.

Children of all ages will also revel in the spirit of celebration with the many activities offered especially for them. These include a 10-ride carnival on the Washington Street Promenade, a parade on Friday morning, appearances by Ronald McDonald and the Big Mac Wagon and Mr. Up and Down the Down Donut Clown, covered wagon rides, Saturday night street disco dance, float race on Huron River, frog jumping contest in Riverside Park, old time movies at the Community Education Center and youth field games in Frog Island Park.

No festival is complete without lots of good food. The Yesteryear Celebration will offer a sidewalk cafe, fresh produce from the new Farmer's Market, bake sales galore, hot dog and pizza stands, chicken barbeque, German dinner, pancake breakfast, ice cream socials and other food and beverage concessions.

Additional activities include a 1930s jazz dance featuring the Austin-Moro Band on Friday evening sponsored by WEMU Radio, a square dance demonstration clinic by the Merry Squares in Frog Island Park on Saturday evening, a theatrical production of "Winesburg, Ohio" by the Ypsilanti Arts Council and the First Annual Heritage Road Rally, sponsored by the Ypsilanti Corvette Club.

Plenty of parking will be available for the festival. In addition to downtown lots and city streets, there will be parking on 11 acres of land at Harriet Street and I-94. A festival information booth staffed by the Ypsilanti Area Jaycees will also be located at this site. Shuttle buses will run continuously from this site and parking lots on the campus of Eastern Michigan University to Depot Town.

Brochures and additional festival information may be obtained by calling the Ypsilanti Area Chamber of Commerce at 482-4920.

Wayne Council won't put charter issue on ballot

Wayne City Council members last week rejected the idea of using their prerogative as a council to put the issue of city charter revision on the Nov. 6 ballot.

The suggestion was put to the council by Robert Hood, a resident of Hickory Hollow Cooperative, who noted that the signatures of 600 Wayne citizens on petitions for the charter review question is "a clear indication" that there is an interest in the issue.

The petitions containing those 600 signatures were labelled as "defective" by Wayne City Attorney Russ Schmidt because the name of the sponsoring group was written on the back of the petition. The state law requires that the name be on the front of the petition, he said.

So City Clerk Geneva Ford refused to certify the petitions and place the issue on the ballot.

The Citizens Coalition for City Government Reform, the sponsoring group under the auspices of the Metro Wayne Democratic Club, has since requested an opinion from the state attorney general on the validity of the petitions. According to a member, the group has rejected the idea of regathering all the signatures on newly-printed petitions, and will rely on the attorney general's opinion, and the courts, to get the petitions validated.

Hood argued that the 600

signatures should be enough to show the council that the citizen concern is there. The council had, several months ago, refused to put the question on the ballot, directing the Metro Wayne Democratic Club to go the petition route, if they wanted the question before voters. Council members used the same reasoning last week when Hood made his suggestion.

"For the council to request (that it be on the ballot) would be seen as tacit approval (of the charter revision)," said Kurt Heidmann. "That's the reason we sent them out to get petitions (in the first place)."

The council was not convinced by Hood's argument that the council could put the issue on the ballot and still make it clear that it was not endorsing the charter revision.

It was on July 17 that City Attorney Russ Schmidt informed the council and citizens group that he felt the petitions to be defective.

Council members noted last week that Schmidt's analysis of the petitions was rendered in plenty of time for the group to go out and get signatures all over again.

"The city spelled out why (the petitions) weren't any good," Mike Brown said. "That should have been their rallying point, to go out and get the signatures on valid petitions. It could have been done in a week."

At this point, even if the attorney general rules that the petitions are valid, that opinion wouldn't carry the force of law, and the city would likely stand by its original decision. So the case would end up in court.

There is no indication of when the attorney general will release an opinion, and as time goes by the possibility of having the question on the ballot at all grows slimmer and slimmer.

HOW CAN ONE FACE THEM?

Having failed to attend a friend's funeral service, one may experience great difficulty in facing members of the bereaved family without embarrassment. So, too, many members of the deceased's family find it hard to face some one who did not pay their respects at the funeral service, the wake or other form of visitation. To avoid such embarrassment, a person who could not attend the service ought to make a personal condolence call afterwards. He should also explain to the family why he could not attend. Although one must make these decisions individually, as the situation requires, it must be pointed out that funeral attendance and condolence calls are social responsibilities. We occasionally observe this "loss of friendship" when a simple phone call might have prevented the hurt feelings. If you are not clear about visitation etiquette or duties, feel free to call on us for assistance. We will be pleased to help you at any time.

Sumpter dump remains a hazard

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

A dumping site in Sumpter Township which had its license revoked early this year remains a potential hazard to anyone wandering on to the unguarded property.

The dumping ground lies to the east and to the south of the corner of Judd and Carleton West roads. Three small and one large lot which make up the 30-acre parcel are owned by Lyle Zilka, according to township records.

The state Department of Natural Resources (DNR) confirmed Friday that it had revoked Zilka's license about March. Ordered stopped was Zilka's accepting liquid waste products in 55-gallon steel drums.

Some 6,000 steel drums now are stored above ground on Zilka's property, some of which have no tops, exposing highly toxic and flammable liquid waste materials.

Mike Andrews, assistant director of the Environmental Health Division of the Wayne County Health Department, said a firm called Environmental Waste Control contracts to haul the liquid waste material from plants operated by the automotive "Big Three". Zilka, in turn, is hired by the large hauling firm to haul the steel drums to his dumping site, Andrews said.

A spokesman for the DNR said Zilka's license has been revoked and a letter sent last March advising him to quit accepting liquid waste materials and to make arrangements to get rid of the steel drums on his property. Neighbors told the Enterprise, however, that Zilka was still accepting the steel drums a week ago.

The DNR could not tell the Enterprise why Zilka's property was not guarded or fenced off to prevent persons, especially children, from wandering on to the dumping site.

Larry Elmleaf, a resource specialist with the DNR, said prohibition of trespassing was up to the property owner. He also suggested that the state police be contacted. He said he was not sure if restriction of trespassing on Zilka's property was up to the DNR or not.

Elmleaf said those liquid materials that could not be recovered, such as oils and solvents, would be burned.

Andrews said the liquids would be disposed of and processed in Detroit and possibly at Chemical Recovery Systems in Romulus. That firm has been implicated in the foul smells emanating from Trouton Drain in Romulus, possibly from waste liquids stored in a lagoon filtering through 10 to 15 feet of soil to the Trouton Drain, a storm receptacle.

Andrews and another spokesperson for the DNR said the steel drums may be sent by Zilka for burial in Wayne Disposal, a large landfill site in Van Buren Township. However, Mike Farrentino, owner of the landfill, told the Enterprise he had not been contacted by the DNR and had no knowledge of the matter.

The DNR spokesperson said a sample evaluation of 100 steel drums made last February revealed that 10 percent contained liquids which had flash points of 70 degrees Fahrenheit or less, meaning they would burn at those temperatures.

Many of the steel drums have warning labels advising that liquids inside are highly flammable or toxic (harmful to the touch or to breathing).

A neighbor, William Czaja, who owns 20 acres of land to the south of Zilka's dumping site, claims his drinking water is being contaminated by waste products dumped on the adjacent land.

He said complaints to the county health department and to the DNR were to no avail. Evidently, Czaja is still unaware that Zilka's license has been revoked.

He also claimed that he recently lost $1,000 worth of seed which was washed away from waters flooding on to his land because of improperly situated ditches on his neighbor's land.

Czaja also said men hunting squirrels on his land "got sick to the stomach" from the strong odors drifting across from his neighbor's dumping grounds.

Czaja said his water sometime turned purple, which he attributed to the chemical reaction of contaminated water from Zilka's land combining with water on his land. He is forced to get his drinking water from the township hall, he said.

Andrews explained that until 1977 no permits or licenses were required of persons who operated dumping grounds or sites for liquid waste materials.

VB board to appeal sewer hookup ruling

If all goes well, the Michigan Supreme Court will soon hear an appeal requested by the Van Buren Township Board.

Last week the board directed its attorneys to file a leave for appeal of Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Charles Kaufman's order in October of 1978 to approve a sewer hookup for a mobile home developer.

Refusals by the township board on two occasions landed its members in the Wayne County Jail, once for a day and another time for more than a week. The incident both times made national headlines and was featured on major television newscasts across the nation.

"Every member of the township board and myself are positive the state Supreme Court will hear our appeal and rule in our favor," commented Sup. Pat Cullin.

The board's decision to appeal to the state's highest tribunal came only days after the Michigan Court of Appeals ruled it would not hear the case and reaffirmed Judge Kaufman's original order.

Ongoing since about 1970, the case involving the mobile home park's location on 101 acres of township land has been laden with controversy. From Judge Kaufman's personal intercession to grant

List grows

Candidates give sign pledge

Four more candidates for public office in Romulus have added their names to the growing list who are pledging to remove their political signs and literature within five days after either the primary or general elections.

The four are: City Council incumbent Beverly McAnally, who is running for the city treasurer's job; incumbent Fred Junior Block, seeking re-election to council; Gerald Kubiak, who is seeking the city clerk's office; and Ed Fall, running for a city council position.

All 26 candidates for city offices were sent letters several weeks ago by Romulus Beautification Committee Chairman Betty Kitchens asking them to voluntarily remove their signs within five days after the upcoming elections.

For purposes of publishing their names in the newspaper, they were given until Sept. 3, 1979 to comply. After that date, those who have not returned cards to the committee, will be noted in a news story before the primary election on Monday, Sept. 10, 1979.

In conjunction with the political sign pledge program, Mayor

William M. Oakley issued a plea to citizens to respect the right of candidates to advertise their intentions by displaying political signs, and not destroy or vandalize them, even though they may not favor the person seeking office.

The question of the right to display political signs is currently being tested in court and the issue is due to be decided locally by a vote of the people in Romulus on the Nov. 6 ballot.

An ordinance amendment prohibiting their display in Romulus, was brought before the City Council last month by the Beautification Committee, who subsequently referred the issue to a vote of the people at the general election.

To stave off county shutdown

Commissioners delay decision on 24-hour work week

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners has postponed decision on a proposed 24-hour work week to allow discussion on the issue between union officials and the County Labor Relations Board.

Sitting as the Ways and Means Committee, the commissioners put aside the shortened work proposal from Board Chairman Richard E. Manning to allow talks among the Labor Board, the unions and other interested parties, according to a motion approved by the committee and submitted by Commissioner Kay L. Beard of Inkster.

Manning proposed the reduced work week, he said, as an alternative to a complete shut-down of county services and layoff of all employees sometime before the end of the current fiscal year, Nov. 30.

Some important major decision is necessary, said Manning, because the county is headed for a potential $19.5 million deficit and cannot expect rescue quickly enough from either state or federal sources.

The burden is on the Board of Commissioners, he stressed.

"We were not hired to watch the Titanic sink, we were hired to man the pumps."

In his resolution proposing fewer working hours to save money, Manning noted that it would require agreement from the courts, other elected county officials "Constitutionally or statutorily empowered to manage their respective jurisdictions" and the unions.

Also in the resolution, Manning pointed out that it would allow department heads to schedule work throughout the entire week to "maintain at least minimal service capability (for the public) at all times."

During the meeting, he explained that each department head would have liberty to schedule according to individual department priorities. In some situations, this could mean four half days and one full day at work, in other instances it could mean three full days all together.

If approved, the proposal would be put into effect as soon as possible in August and extend through November. The idea is calculated to save almost $4.5 million, Manning said. That amount, under the plan, along with about $9.5 million expected from the state for the sale of and reimbursements concerning the Walter P. Reuther long-term care facility, would leave the county with need to recover only an approximate $5 million in the next fiscal year, Manning said.

Under Manning's plan, certain departments would be exempted from any shortened work-week arrangement. These include the jail and Sheriff's Road Patrol, the Juvenile Court and Youth Home and the D.J. Healy Center; the County General Hospital, medical examiner, Air Pollution Control Division of the Health Department, Community Mental Health Board and the County Federated Library System.

According to Manning, reasons for the exemptions recommended are because of critical public health and safety needs, or because the functions are financed in a way that would otherwise cause the county a loss of income. He said that the air pollution, mental health and library programs are funded with substantial federal or state money.

In a letter to the Board that accompanied the resolution, Manning warned that no other state or federal assistance would be received this fiscal year. He pointed out that:

— State assumption of probation costs is stymied until proposed court reorganization is resolved.

— Even though expected, state money regarding the Reuther long-term care facility is not feasible until the Legislature resumes in September.

— $700,000 due the county under the state revenue sharing has been withdrawn until the Legislature and the Governor reach agreement on county reorganization.

"It is unbelievable that the third largest county in the nation must consider denying services to its citizens because of a failure to come together in Lansing," Manning said. "We are told in effect that no help is forthcoming — not because of lack of need, but because of the form of delivery for one-third of the human beings in this state."

Manning said that he does not regard his short week proposal as an "absolute panacea cast in stone," but rather as "a tool for opening eyes" to a situation that might otherwise force the county to close for 13 weeks.

It won't hurt

Now there that wasn't so bad. Rachel Leah Jaynes of Romulus was given her immunization shots right on schedule, which is the prudent thing to do. Especially at the early ages, say county health officials.

And, it's for free, so people don't have any excuses not to do it," said Rachel's mother Pamela. — Photo by ANP Chief Photographer Lothar E. Konietzko.

Volunteers still needed for MDA Telethon

Volunteers are urgently needed from Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties plus Windsor, Ontario, to answer telephones and record pledges during the 1979 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy. The telethon, telecast for the fifth straight year by WJBK-TV 2, will begin at 8:30 p.m. Sept. 2 and will continue until 6:30 p.m. Sept. 3.

More than 3,000 volunteers are needed and must be at least 18 years of age. They will be asked to report to the Jerry Lewis Telephone Center nearest their homes for a 5-hour shift of their choice. Telephone centers are located this year in the Northland, Eastland, Westland-Dearborn, Mt. Clemens Pontiac, Downriver, Windsor and downtown Detroit areas. There will be a total of more than 900 phones in operation during the entire telecast.

Those wishing to help at any area Telephone Center, either on the phones or as clerical helpers, may register by calling Telethon Headquarters at 399-8800.

Channel 2 will broadcast the Telethon from their Southfield studios. Local cut-ins will appear every hour at 10 minutes past the hour.

Joe Glover, who is the honorary chairman of the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of Muscular Dystrophy Association for the third year, will be the local host. He will be accompanied by other members of TV-2, plus local "celebrities" from the media, sports, educational, civic and religious groups.

All proceeds from the telethon go to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association, which provides diagnosis, clinical treatment, therapy, wheelchairs, braces and other services free of charge to Dystrophy patients. Funds raised also support vital medical research into Muscular Dystrophy and related neuromuscular diseases.

Ron M. Linton is Canton Township's man on the hill, an indirect link to federal dollars.

He is also man on the hill for Westland, Garden City, Wayne County, 14 Downriver communities including Grosse Ile, Wyandotte, and Trenton. And he represents Baltimore County, Maryland, the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago, the Illinois Department of Transportation and a consortium of Wisconsin investor owned electric utilities, among other cities, county and state governments.

Linton is paid by each of those governmental bodies to inform them about upcoming federal grants.

He has pledged his allegiance to Canton...and to all the other listed communities, and more.

Often times, more than not, those communities must compete for federal grants, which brings rise to the question:

How can Linton pledge his allegiance to Canton, and still be loyal to Westland, Garden City and...

"I've always questioned that. I mean how do we really know that he's not giving Westland the inside track on things, and not us?" queried Trustee Gene Daley.

Daley believes Linton may be spreading himself too thin, and by representing so many governments may be caught in a situation where his interests conflict.

"Heck this dude represents half the world," said Daley.

Canton Township has its own locally-based grants coordinator, Terry Carroll. Carroll was hired shortly after former Supervisor Harold Stein took office.

Prior to Carroll the township's only means of communicating with higher-up federal officials was through Congressman William Ford's office, and Linton.

Linton is the founder of Linton, Miels, Reisler and Cotton, Ltd. The 50-year-old native Detroit started the consulting-lobby group in 1968.

In 1977, during former supervisor Robert Greenstein's administration, Linton was hired to assist Canton in obtaining federal grants. He was hired on a contractual basis for $275 a month. Today he is paid $500, monthly.

Mike Gorman, Canton's finance director, assumed the role of quasi-grants coordinator from the onset of Linton's hiring, and continued that role until Carroll came on board.

"I'm a firm believer in Linton," insisted Gorman.

He said without Linton the township would be left in the dark, even today with its own grants coordinator.

"Unless you're in Washington, you don't have the contacts. He is an insider, where Terry (Carroll) is not," Gorman said.

Linton's role as a lobbyist to an ever-growing list of governments and agencies was of concern to Gorman, but of only a minor concern.

PEST OF THE WEEK

FUSARIUM BLIGHT

Fusarium blight, a lawn disease, is becoming more active with increasing temperatures and decreasing rainfall. Look for brown or dead rings up to two feet in diameter, with a patch of green grass in the center. Infected areas may be spotty throughout the lawn.

These symptoms are caused by a fungus that attacks the root system of the grass. When infected plants are subjected to moisture stress during hot, dry weather, they quickly die producing the rings. Pure stands of Merion, Fyking and Nugget bluegrass are most susceptible. Baron, Adelphi, Majestic and Galaxy bluegrasses are resistant.

For control, increase irrigation to prevent moisture stress. The fungicide, Tersan 1991, may be used. Follow label directions.

NIV PSALM 100:4 — Enter His gates with thanksgiving and his courts with praise; give thanks to Him and praise His name.

The late President J. Kennedy who said, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country." The same can also apply in our relationship with God, instead of always asking what God can do for us, let us ask God, WHAT CAN I DO FOR YOU?

Giving thanks and praise to God is the way to bring joy and rewards in to your life.

PSALM 50:22 — He who sacrifices thank offerings honors me, and he prepares the way so that I may show him the salvation of God.

HEBREWS 13:15 — Through Jesus, therefore, let us continually offer to God a sacrifice of praise — the fruit of lips that confess his name. 13:16 — And do not forget to do good and share with others, for with such sacrifices God is pleased.

We, the people, who call ourselves Christians or followers of Christ, we then become servants of the good master. Thus instruments of the will of the good master, seeking to please Him in all we do or say.

II CORINTHIANS 6:13 — "I will be a father to you, and you will be my sons and daughters, says the Lord almighty." 7:1 — Since we have these promises, dear friends, let us purify ourselves from everything that contaminates body and spirit, perfecting holiness out of reverence for God.

"Dear friends, accept this challenge in the privacy of your own home, try giving God a praise offering. Turn to Psalms 75: read the Psalm through prayerfully, then lift your hands toward Heaven and say it over again in praise to the Father. Talk about therapy."

'Sunset' bill: Lawmakers argue pros, cons

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

Close your books, it's a quiz. Only one question, but it's tricky and multiple choice.

"Sunset" legislation is: (1) A very "sexy" issue. (2) Capable of "bringing the State of Michigan to a halt." (3) A bill which recently passed the Senate, but has been called "nothing but a fraud in the Senate." (4) Intended to review existing state programs to determine whether those programs are necessary or waste of taxpayers' dollars. (5) All of the above.

The answer is all of the above. That is, depending on who is speaking on the issue.

If it's Senate Majority Leader William Faust, the proposed legislation is potentially "dangerous."

Faust, a Democrat, represents the Westland, Wayne and Canton communities, among others in his 13th District.

Sunset legislation, according to its definition, is proposed to review all of the state's 19 departments, with the review to be done on a periodic basis.

The intent of the review is to eliminate wasteful and outdated programs, many of which continue on and on because the State Legislature has never been required to re-evaluate the programs' usefulness.

That's where sunset comes into play. Such a law puts an automatic ending date on a program, unless the program is specifically continued by the lawmakers after review.

Faust said he is in favor of cleaning up government waste, and thus supports the theory of legislation. But he is quick to note his opposition to a "key" provision of the bill.

"I oppose terminating programs automatically. What if there isn't time to review the program before the termination date. Should the program just end?" Faust asked.

"They enacted it (sunset legislation) in Colorado, and it's one of the most horrible pieces of legislation I've ever seen," Faust said. "They were caught in a mess, because they couldn't review the programs in time and had they adhered to the termination date Colorado would have ceased."

"Colorado would have come to an end."

To that argument, Steve Carter, state chairperson of Michigan Common Cause, says "political rhetoric."

"It may sound good, but really it's just a smoke screen. Without a termination date to sunset, there will never be a way to force the legislature to review the programs," Carter said. "Termination of bad programs is sunset."

Common Cause is a nationwide citizens lobby and was the principle supporter of the sunset legislation's passage in Colorado. That was four years ago.

Carter said although there are some flaws in the sunset law passed in Colorado, the legislation could be feasible and practical, if a provision was added to a Michigan law requiring staggered termination dates.

"It's certainly very needed and a very sexy issue now," Carter said. "After the last election with three tax limitation issues on the ballot, the citizen concern is with cutting taxes, cutting the waste and getting rid of the fat in government."

He referred to the recent bill on sunset which passed the Senate as a "fraud."

"They make you think they're for getting rid of the waste. But you can't be for the true intent of sunset, unless you support a termination date. It forces them to take action," Carter insisted.

Past voting practices on the issue in both the House of Representatives and the Senate during the past three years has shown a partisan split, with more Republicans favoring the cleanup government legislation than Democrats.

State Rep. Robert Law, representing the Livonia and Westland communities, is a Republican. He supports sunset legislation, including the provision for a termination date.

Interestingly enough, so does State Rep. Thomas Brown, a Democrat, who represents Canton

WILLIAM FAUST

Township, Wayne and Westland. Brown also favors automatic termination.

"I have to say that without a termination date, I hesitate giving my support to the bill," Brown said.

Admitting to having no certain or exact knowledge as to how many programs actually exist within each of the 19 state departments, Brown said the time has come to flush out waste in Michigan government.

Sunset, he said, has the capabilities to do just that and at all levels where state programs reach.

"I don't honestly know how many programs we have, but I do know there are thousands," Brown said, adding that he is curious to find out exactly how many programs exist and if their usefulness has run out.

"And I think the people would like to know if they're getting a dollar's worth of service for a dollar paid," Brown said.

Likely lobbyist groups opposing sunset legislation would be industry, union groups, school officials, social services or persons who stand to lose a program, Brown reasoned.

"There has been opposition, but I personally think this is needed to keep everyone on the ball," he said.

Faust disagrees.

It is Faust's belief that programs which have run their course of usefulness will, in time, fade from the funding scene.

"Like the program for Spanish American War Veterans. In about eight years there probably will only be two (veterans) left in the state, and the program will terminate itself," Faust explained.

That theory, however, was refuted by Rep. Law.

Law said since he was elected to office three years ago, he can recall debating the merits of sunset legislation, and still today is urging the bill be given termination "teeth."

"Let's face it, as long as the funds keep coming and no questions asked, the programs will continue," Law said. "There has to be a cut-off date for programs, or it won't be worth anything."

Even with the Colorado victory, it has taken about three years for the "belt tightening" issue to be taken off the back burner, and given top priority, Law noted. Sunset, being shoved from burner to burner over the years, is a major irritant to Law, who scoffs at the prospect of the bill being lost to a filibuster.

Know your law

(This is one of a series of public service articles explaining, in general terms, a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law on their private legal affairs consult with a private attorney.)

By ATT. GEN. FRANK KELLEY

Customers using electronic teller machines—the new bank and business convenience that allows you to complete transactions without waiting in line to see a teller—are covered by Michigan and federal laws.

Because electronic tellers don't recognize faces, or double check signatures or identification, the machines can make it easy for strangers to withdraw money from customers' accounts. It takes only the plastic "credit" card and knowledge of the secret number the bank assigns each customer to get money out of the bank.

The Michigan legislature recently passed the Electronic Funds Transfer Act which provides that customers are not responsible for unauthorized bank transactions unless the bank can prove that the customer was negligent with the teller card or number.

The act states that customer negligence includes writing the secret number down where others can learn it, or passing it on to a friend or relative.

If an unauthorized withdrawal or transaction appears on the monthly bank statement, the customer should notify the bank of it at once. After that notification, the customer cannot be held responsible for any more unauthorized transactions.

Federal law limits the maximum customer loss for unauthorized use at $50. If a customer does not report the unauthorized use within 60 days after receiving the bank statement or within two days of losing the card, the maximum loss is $500.

Electronic machines may have another drawback—it is obviously difficult for machines to stop payment on merchandise that is found to be defective after its purchase.

The Electronic Funds Transfer Act addresses that problem. It provides that customers can return the defective merchandise within four days, providing that the amount of the transaction is over $50. It does not apply to transactions under $50. A written request also should be made to the bank within 14 days after an oral request has been made to reverse the transaction.

To avoid problems or unauthorized uses, examine the monthly statements carefully.

Any error must be reported within 60 days and banks are required to investigate the error within 10 days of receiving the report.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

Trumpets have been around for thousands of years. There are few actual instruments extant, but there are many illustrations and sculptures from ancient and medieval periods that illustrate their presence and usage. In many of the ancient civilizations, trumpets are shown as military or fanfare instruments. The early trumpets were usually fairly straightforward with fairly straight tubing. As time went on, trumpet designs became more elaborate, and the Schnitzer trumpet of 1598 features elaborately curved piping with at least two full loops and various curlicues.

For some musical fun DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, 941-8484 invites you to come by for a demonstration of our pianos and organs. Museums recall days of missionary explorers

Michigan's museums tell a story that spans the state's mining, lumbering and Great Lakes shipping eras and reaches back to the days of the Indians and the missionary-explorers.

They also spotlight some of the world's finest artwork, salute internationally famous skiers, pay tribute to the state's auto and furniture industries and explore the world of science.

Alpena's Jesse Besser Museum of Art, Science and History boasts one of the Midwest's finest artifact collections on early man in the Great Lakes.

At Harbor Springs, the museum named for Ottawa Chief Andrew J. Blackbird is housed in the century-old dwelling he used while acting as postmaster for the early settlers and traders. On exhibit are birch bark canoes, quill baskets, Wampum, paintings, maps and household implements.

Indian relics also are displayed at Copper Harbor's Astor House

Museum, named for the man who made millions in fur trading in the 19th century. Other big attractions include a collection of 300 antique dolls and exhibits devoted to mining, the railroad and the Great Lakes.

Other fine museums in the Upper Peninsula include the one at Lake Linden, which is housed in an old Calumet & Hecla mining office building. It features relics from the days when copper was king.

Ishpeming, a prime winter sports area, hosts both the National Ski Museum and the National Ski Hall of Fame.

French missionary-explorer Father Jacques Marquette is honored by museums at St. Ignace and Sault Ste. Marie. Marquette founded a mission in St. Ignace in 1671 and a museum has been established there in 135-year-old Mission Church near the site of his Marquette Park grave.

Marquette is among those honored by the Shrine of the Missionaries at Sault Ste. Marie. Visitors are invited to tour a "Mission of Man" religious exhibit at the base of the tower or ride an elevator 174 feet up to an observation deck for a panoramic view of the Soo Locks and the American and Canadian Soos.

The days of sailing vessels are recalled at the Museum of the Great Lakes at Bay County Historical Museum in Bay City and at the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Detroit's Belle Isle. Shipboard relics, navigational equipment, marine paintings and scale-model ships are among the attractions.

A different type of power is on display at Dearborn's Henry Ford Museum, Flint's Alfred P. Sloan Jr. Museum and the Gilmore Car Museum at Hickory Corners, about 20 miles northwest of Kalamazoo.

Some 200 antique cars are on view at the Henry Ford Museum, along with letters, documents, pictures and gifts depicting the auto pioneer's life, first car, first engine and the remarkable Model T.

There are more than 60 cars and carriages at the Sloan Museum, named for the late president and board chairman of General Motors Corp. The Gilmore Museum's collection numbers more than 50, with the majority over 50 years old. It is open Sundays only during summer.

Collections of guns and uniforms are on display at Detroit's Fort Wayne Military Museum and at the State Historical Museum in Lansing. The fort was built in the 1840s and visitors are able to tour the barracks, powder magazine and tunnel.

Some of the world's finest art is found in the art institutes at Detroit, Flint and Grand Rapids. Among the Detroit Institute of Arts' most notable exhibits are collections of African art, 17th century Dutch and Flemish paintings and armor.

The Flint Institute of Arts features Renaissance art, tapestries and furniture plus antique French paperweights and Oriental art. Grand Rapids' fine art collection is housed in a building erected in 1844.

Grand Rapids also has a Public Museum and Planetarium with displays devoted to Michigan wildlife, plants and archeology plus a special section on furniture in tribute to the city's fame as Furniture City.

Michigan's wildlife is highlighted at the cave-like Call of the Wild Museum at Gaylord. Exhibits on animals, birds, insects and all manner of things of interest to youngsters can be found at the Children's Museum in Detroit and at Cranbrook Institute in Bloomfield Hills.

Holland, Dutch capital of the United States, is the site of the Netherlands Museum, a collection of memorabilia from both the Old and New World Dutch heritage.

A different part of the world is represented at Marshall's Honolulu House, which is a duplicate in miniature of the Hawaiian home of a chief justice of the Michigan Supreme Court who had served as U.S. consul to Hawaii.

The stagecoach days are recalled with a visit to Historic Walker Tavern at Cambridge Junction in the Irish Hills. It was an important stop on the old Detroit-to-Chicago stagecoach line.

Huron City was a major logging community in the 1850s but forest fires and heavy logging ended the area's lumbering business and it soon became a ghost town. Seven of the original buildings have been restored, and there is a museum open to the public in summer.

IRS audit: There are recourses in disputes

Probably fewer things cause more discomfort than the prospect of an Internal Revenue Service examination of your tax return, and one of the most unsettling apprehensions is that the IRS holds all the cards; that you can only agree with the findings, or make an ineffectual protest.

Of course, if your examination ends with no change or a refund to you, you'll probably think no more of it. But what if the IRS examiner proposes additional tax due, and you disagree? Writing the check is not your only alternative; you have the right to appeal the examiner's finding within IRS and even through the federal courts, or both.

Suppose your examination takes place in an IRS office. You may be able to settle the disagreement immediately by explaining your position to the examiner's supervisor. That's your right. But if you and the IRS still can't agree, you have the choice of continuing your appeal through the IRS and, if needed, the federal courts, or you can go directly to the courts. Most taxpayers use the IRS system first.

Starting an appeal is not difficult. When you and the IRS disagree, the IRS will mail you a copy of the examination report explaining the proposed adjustments in your tax, and include a letter telling you of your right to appeal within 30 days. An agreement form and a copy of IRS Publication 5, "Appeal Rights and Preparation of Protests for Unagreed Cases" also will be provided. Follow the instructions in the letter.

IRS instituted a new appeals system in 1978...

If a written protest is required (not necessary if the amount in dispute does not exceed $2,500 or if the examination is conducted as part of the Individual Office Examination program or by correspondence), you must make it within the 30-day period granted in the letter. And remember that you may, at any time, decide to agree with the examiner's findings by signing the waiver form provided.

If you have decided to use the IRS appeals system, an Appeals Officer in your particular IRS region will arrange a conference with you at a convenient time and place. Conferences are conducted on an informal basis, but you or your representative should be prepared to discuss all disputed issues and present your views. Coming prepared will save the time and expense of more meetings. Chances are that you and the IRS will be able to reach an agreement here.

The IRS instituted a new appeals system in 1978 in which all taxpayers disputing a tax question would have a single administrative hearing before an appeals officer, who acts independently of the district office.

The hearing officer now has full authority to settle a case regardless of the dollar amount involved, taking into account such elements as the hazards of litigation. One of the benefits the IRS forseees from the new procedure is a greater degree of uniformity in decisions.

But what happens if the IRS appeals system does not work out? Your next step is the federal courts.

You have the choice of taking your appeal to the U.S. Tax Court, the U.S. Court of Claims or a U.S. District Court. If you don't want to pay the tax before going to court use the Tax Court, since it hears only cases where taxes have not been assessed. Once you decide to go to Tax Court and you've received your

Labor of love

The Rev. Larry Dahlberg considers himself "just a simple man who loves God and wants to preach the Bible to God's people." The pastor of Spreading Oak Tabernacle led the congregation in celebrating the church's 40th anniversary. —ANP photo.

With joyous celebration Tabernacle observes 40th

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Staff Writer

The "grand old lady" just celebrated her 40th birthday and she looks better than ever.

A large number of Inkster people — the prominent and not-so-prominent — rubbed elbows in the joyous celebration.

Honored was Spreading Oak Old Time Religion Tabernacle on Helen Street in Inkster which was the center of attention at special church services Aug. 5. The splendid church began in a canvas tent in the summer of 1939 on the corner of Cherry Hill Road and Helen Street.

With the passing of years, the generosity of God's people has built a lasting tabernacle to worship their Saviour.

The house of God was filled to overflowing for the 40th anniversary as Pastor Larry Dahlberg read a brief history of the church. Praise was offered for God's blessings during the service and food and fellowship followed in the fellowship hall.

The church began in the summer of 1939 when a group of workers from Ball Road Old Time Religion Tabernacle came and pitched an 18-by-20-foot tent. The tent, which cost only $20, developed into a tabernacle for God's people to dwell in.

The first meeting was held on the first Sunday afternoon in August of that year with approximately 30 people attending. Special meetings were held and Mrs. Ward Nixon, the mother of recently retired Inkster Fire Chief Jack Nixon, was the first convert.

Mrs. Nixon asked that Rev. and Sister Kalbes be sent over to the neighborhood to hold Sunday Evening services.

In early fall of 1939, Frank Steinhauer donated a quarter acre of ground in memory of his wife. In later years the remaining three-quarters of an acre was purchased where the tabernacle now sits.

A 24-by-34-foot building was built by the men of the church and Rev. Charles Denniston preached his first sermon for the new congregation. The church held only evening services until Mother's Day of 1940 when it began regular morning worship services.

Instrumental in the building of the first building were Edna and Ilene Vogan who went through the neighborhood for donations and to Mr. Fellrath, owner of a local lumber company, who extended material on credit.

In 1951 the men of the church, with the indispensable help of the women, began the larger auditorium that worshipers used for the 40th anniversary. The first service was held in the present auditorium on Good Friday of 1952 and the fellowship hall was added sometime later.

Rev. Bert Kidd, a former "neighborhood kid" who was saved at the church, was the featured speaker for the anniversary service. He is a graduate of God's Bible School in Cincinnati, Ohio, Spring Arbor College in Ann Arbor and Asbury Seminary in Kentucky.

The closely-knit congregation has had only two pastors in 40 years. Rev. Dahlberg, a local neighborhood boy who grew up in the area, is the present pastor. Mr. Dahlberg succeeded Rev. Adam Kalbes, who labored for many years in God's vineyard as pastor of the tabernacle.

"There is not time to tell the many ways the Lord has led and helped us down through the years. Praise His Dear Name!" Rev. Dahlberg said.

"Brother Kalbes and myself wish to take this opportunity to thank the Lord for the privilege that has been ours to be 'workers together with Him' in this community. To thank the precious ones who have stood so steadfast and faithful down through the years in the good times and the hard places."

Mr. Dahlberg told the audience that the things that were accomplished were for the glory of God and were achieved "because you were steadfast and faithful."

Consumer Comment

Read before you sign

By LINDA JOY
Executive Director
Michigan Consumers Council

Ms. D. called the Consumers Council Guideline in a state of confusion. Before she could purchase her new furniture on time, she had been confronted with pages of legalese which made up the contract. Before she signed, she wanted to know what to look out for to avoid trouble later.

As the consumer counselor explained, it's best to ask these types of questions before any kind of legal document is signed. Whether it's a lease, mortgage, sales contract or credit card agreement, all may be equally confusing.

Before you sign any contract, remember some basic things which may be overlooked by an anxious salesperson and a willing buyer.

Don't sign any contract which contains blank spaces. This prevents someone from filling in an amount or clause which may not be fair to you.

Be sure to check the carbon copies of the contract to make sure they are the same all the way through.

Most importantly, don't sign a contract you do not fully understand. Read the contract very carefully; don't take the salesperson's word about what it says. If parts of the contract are disagreeable to you, tell the salesperson—some businesses will make adjustments.

One of the most common contracts is the retail installment contract. This is signed when you purchase an item and plan to pay for it over a period of time. The Retail Installment Sales Act of 1966 lists 13 requirements for such contracts to protect your interests. Make sure the following items are included: Name and place of business; Your name and address; cash price of goods or services; amount of the downpayment; the amount due in finance charges and interest; and the complete cost of the purchase, including extra charges.

The cost of buying on an installment contract may be high, so check to see if credit could be obtained cheaper elsewhere. Once you have signed a contract, be sure you receive a copy of the contract.

Creditors use different methods of computing interest, so you should shop carefully for that, too. If you think there's a chance the loan or contract may be paid off early, you may be better off with a simple interest loan. This type of arrangement charges interest only on the unpaid balance.

Another type of contract which often leaves consumers bewildered is the door-to-door sales contract which is signed in the home. In these cases, you're protected by the Michigan Home Solicitation Act which requires a 3-day cooling-off period for sales of more than $25. This means you have three days to think over your purchase.

If you decide you don't want the item, simply cancel the contract by writing the company. Keep in mind the name and address of the company must appear on the contract—if it doesn't, the contract isn't binding. When you cancel, you're entitled to a refund of any money already paid.

For more information on consumer contracts, call the Consumers Council Guideline at 1-800-292-5680 Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. 18¢ toll free.

STOMACH ULCERS

Have you ever heard someone refer to one of the more exclusive residential areas in your home town as "Ulcer Row"? How often have you heard Madison Avenue referred to as "Ulcer Alley"? Even in the world of entertainment ulcers have nearly become a badge of the profession. Yes, peptic ulcers could nearly be considered a status symbol if it were not for the fact that today, this condition, which was once reserved almost entirely for the hard pressing business man, has begun to take its toll among men and women in every walk of life.

There is much discussion about ulcers, they are even joked about by today's entertainers, but what exactly are peptic ulcers? Where do they come from? What danger signal do they present and most important, what can be done about them?

Peptic ulcers are nothing more than open sores on the lining of the stomach or the upper part of the small intestine. In men they are most often in that part of the small intestine known as the duodenum, and therefore they are known as duodenal ulcers. In women the ulcers are almost always in the stomach. There they are known as gastric ulcers. Usually the ulcers occur singularly, but more than one can be present.

Emotional and nervous tension play an increasingly important role in the development of ulcers. This is why recurrence is so frequent unless the basic, underlying cause is located and corrected. It is because of this nervous factor, that chiropractic has been so successful in the care of both gastric and duodenal ulcers. When an interference in the normal supply of the vital nerve force is present the body can become more easily upset, the mucous lining of the stomach can develop an area of lowered resistance, and the highly acid content of the digestive juices can damage the wall of the stomach or intestine and an ulcer can begin to develop.

Pain is by far the most common sign of ulcers. The pain may vary from a mild discomfort to a sharp, severe, sometimes penetrating sensation. Quite frequently it is steady aching or gnawing that resembles a constant hunger pain. The pain of peptic ulcers has four distinctive characteristics however; they are: 1. The pain generally is of the same type and in the same location. 2. It tends to maintain a rhythm of occurrence. 3. It has a tendency to regular period of remission. 4. The pain proves to become chronic. Pain, however, is not the only symptom of ulcers. Constipation is frequent, heartburn, swelling, nausea, vomiting and weight loss may be present in uncomplicated cases. Vomiting of blood occurs in some cases and it may even be the first symptom to appear. Peptic ulcers may perforate, allowing the contents of the stomach or intestine to escape into the abdominal cavity. When this happens symptoms are severe and death can occur.

In most cases of ulcers, chiropractic offers the safest, surest, most effective way to elimination. The science of chiropractic is directed and dedicated to the location and correction of the cause of chronic nerve interference that results in lowered resistance in some part of the body. If ulcers are a result of a change in the supply of the vital nerve power from the brain down into the digestive system, your chiropractor is the man most qualified to locate and correct the cause of this change. In many cases vertebral misalignment with resulting pressures on the spinal cord and spinal nerves is one of the main reasons for the development of peptic ulcers.

ONLY NATURE HEALS! CHIROPRACTIC PROVES IT!

Yes, only nature heals. And the only help she often needs is to eliminate nerve interference. When the body structure is out of balance or a vertebra and disc, or other joint, slip out of alignment, nature's healing may be slowed by the resulting interference to normal nerve supply. When this happens, the chiropractor must be called upon to help eliminate this nerve interference.

IRS audit: There are recourses in disputes

examination report from the IRS, ask IRS to issue a Notice of Deficiency. That's basically a letter stating that you owe additional tax. You'll have 90 days from the date the notice is mailed to file a petition with the Tax Court (or, if you decide to settle, to pay the tax).

It's important to act within 90 days; otherwise, the IRS will automatically assess the tax against you, taking your case out of the Tax Court's jurisdiction. If you filed your petition on a timely basis, the Tax Court will schedule your case for trial at a location convenient to you. You may represent yourself before the Tax Court or you may be represented by anyone admitted to practice before that court.

The Tax Court has a Small Case Procedure for disputes of $5,000 or less for any taxable year. If you choose this procedure, and if the Tax Court approves, you may represent yourself before the court. However, under the Small Case Procedure the decision of the Tax Court cannot be appealed. Information on the Small Case Procedure is available from the U.S. Tax Court, 400 Second St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20217.

Generally, the District Courts and Court of Claims will hear your suit only after you have paid the disputed tax and filed for a refund. You choose which of these courts to petition. The Court of Claims is located in Washington, D.C., and cases before this court are decided by a judge. District Courts are located in every state, the District of Columbia and some territories, and you have the choice of a jury trial there.

A claim for refund may be made by filing Form 1040X, "Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return," with the IRS Service Center where you mailed your original return. File a separate 1040X for each tax year involved and attach statements supporting your claims. Remember though that Form 1040X must be filed within three years of the date of the original return, or two years from the date the tax was paid, whichever is later. If the IRS rejects your claim, or if they do not act on your claim within 6 months, you may then file suit for refund. But you must file your suit no later than two years after the IRS disallows your refund claim.

You can obtain more detailed information about filing a suit from the Clerk of your District Court, or from the Clerk of the Court of Claims, 717 Madison Place, N.W., Washington D.C., 20005. The IRS has a free publication explaining its appeals process and your rights. Ask your local IRS office for Publication 556.

Remember that at any IRS proceeding during this appeals process, you have the right to represent yourself, or be represented by an attorney.

Legislators 'tackle' Headlee amendment

Bills approved by the State Legislature before its summer recess gradually are being signed into law, according to one lawmaker.

State Rep. Edward Mahalak (D-38th District), said that several of new public acts relate to local government, with the most important measure guaranteeing the same level of state support for local government.

The new law implements a provision of the tax limitation amendment, approved by voters in last November's general election, the Romulus Democrat explained, adding that the provision requires that the share of total state spending paid to local units of government, taken as a group, not be reduced below what was paid in the 1978-1979 fiscal year.

"Because the amendment also says the legislature must implement its provisions, it was necessary to enact a law containing provisions for determining the proportion of state aid to local governments, ensuring that the payments are made and defining the terms of the amendment," Mahalak said.

The law covers school districts, intermediate school districts, community colleges, cities, counties, townships, villages and local government authorities and political subdivisions.

Mahalak added that state spending does not include federal funds used by the state for local government.

The legislation requires the Department of Management and Budget to make the calculation of the percentage of the state budget that goes to local government, based on the 1978-79 fiscal year, and requires appropriations bills, approved by the legislature, to include an itemized statement of state spending to local units.

Mahalak said the legislation also creates a local government payment fund into which the legislature can appropriate money, if it appeared additional funds would be necessary to meet required spending levels to local government, but for which specific spending programs were not approved.

The law takes effect Dec. 31, with the legislature intending to ask the State Supreme Court, in the meantime, to issue an advisory opinion on a section of the amendment, which states that the new programs assumed by the state from local government would still be counted as local program spending, Mahalak said.

"It is estimated that the share of total state spending that goes to local units of government is just over 40 percent of the budget," Mahalak added. "Thus, of every dollar (not counting federal money) the state spends in the future, at least 40 cents will have to be paid to local government."

"This does not mean that each local government's share of state spending will remain at that level."

Mahalak went on to say that a recession could mean a loss in state revenues, but that the new law guarantees that the share of state spending which goes to local governments would not be reduced, no matter how difficult the state's financial situation should become.

"The tax limitation amendment does not intend to tie the hands of the Governor and the legislature when it comes to the distribution of state funds, but only to ensure that the overall spending on local government is not reduced," the lawmaker said. "Thus, the political process will see to it that the programs people want most to receive the necessary funds, provided the people let the legislature know what they want."

Cultural Center hosts annual Open House

The Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Public Library and Detroit Historical Museum will be joining together Sept. 12 for their ninth annual Open House, an evening of free enjoyment for the public.

Slated from 7 to 10 p.m., all sections of the three institutions will be open and will be hosting a vast array of activities for all ages.

The library will present a show of comic book art and political cartooning, spanning several decades, and will offer an opportunity for visitors to talk to

Larry Wright of "Wright Angles", Cathy Guisewite of "Cathy", Harvey Kurtzman of Mad Magazine and Draper Hill of The Detroit News.

An exciting mix of photopaintings and live chamber music will happen at 7, 8 and 9 p.m., and showings of classic "Popeye" cartoons will continue all evening.

Varieties of comic book art also will be available at The Comic Book Store, and the Photogallery will hold the views of David Griffith.

The Institute of Art will present guided tours to "Highlights of the Collections" and showstopper look at the costume, fashion and theatrical designs of Erte. "Image and Object in Contemporary Sculpture" will be explored by artist Michele Oka Doner and dealer Jackie Feigenson.

Wright, Ms. Guisewite, Kurtzman and Hill will talk about their art individually and as a panel, and Keith Aoki, sculptor, also will discuss his works.

Folksinger Keith Esser will be entertaining in Kresge Court, and the major "John Singer Sargent" exhibition will be previewed in a slide lecture.

At the Historical Museum visitors will be able to walk into the shops along "The Streets of Old Detroit" as the Paint Creek Folklore Society plays and sings early American music.

"Michigan's Automotive Heritage", "Detroit's Polish Heritage" and "Dressed in Detroit: Stores and Their Fashions, 1890-1950" are the exhibitions that will be mounted for the Open House. The "Oldster Mime Theatre" from the Attic Theatre, barbershop quartets, puppeteers, a magician and craft demonstrators will be situated throughout the building, and the Charles Green Quartet will fill Kresge Hall with their jazz beat.

The evening is designed to be a notable activity — and fun-filled free experience which will attract old friends and citizens who are not usual visitors to the Cultural Center.

The intent is to introduce more people to these institutions and to remove some of the hesitation that a "first-time visit" holds. To further enhance the happy atmosphere of the ninth annual Open House, Woodward Avenue between Kirby and Farnsworth will be closed to traffic and will be bedecked with plantings and torches and brimming over with the toe-tapping music of the New McKinney Cotton Pickers.

Ethnic Summer Days brings world to youths

Summer Ethnic Fun Days, a special program to introduce children to the cultures of other countries through fun and games, has been extended to last until the end of August. It takes place at the International Institute, 111 E. Kirby in the cultural center of Detroit.

The two-hour program is geared to children 6 to 12 years. Some of the activities include dancing a Russian Troika, making a traditional French court jester doll from paper and glue or keeping up with the Mexican Winking Game. The program includes an array of games, dances, songs, folk stories and arts and crafts from around the world. Individuals may pick from three areas of the world for the program. They are Europe, Spanish speaking countries and the Orient.

Activities take place in the newly decorated Hall of Nations, now dedicated to the International Year of the Child with Cyril Miles' colorful 42-case display entitled "Toys, Dolls and Folk Art of the Six Inhabited Global Continents."

The exhibition features games, toys, folk art, textiles, dolls, jewelry, puppets and general handicraft that represent the children's domain around the world.

The display also includes an 8- by 8- by 8-foot hexagonal puzzle symbolic of the six continents of the world which the children are able to put together during the program.

"We always emphasize that by learning the culture of another country, you must think about your own ethnic background and recognize its qualities," said Janet Onesian, program coordinator. "Inevitably, it makes a big impact on the kids and they start investigating their own cultural background."

Cyril Miles is an art instructor at Highland Park Community College. She collaborated with Wayne State University anthropologist Barbara Bilge in designing the exhibit and was assisted by students, Pamela Patterson, Ruth Harlin and James Robertson with support from Highland Park Community College.

The program costs 50 cents per child and is open to both individuals and groups. It was made possible by a grant from the Detroit Council of the Arts. Reservations are essential. Call 871-8600.

Editorial opinions

Tomorrow, today

Two-weeks-ago, Westland Mayor Thomas Taylor announced a bold and imaginative plan for harnessing technology to benefit the citizens of his community.

That plan, a four-phase program beginning with Home Certification, a Municipal Non-profit Cable Television Authority, the Remote Reading of Utility Meters while providing Emergency Medical, Fire and Police protection, and the creation of a Non-profit Community Self-insurance program, will thrust Westland into the spotlight of progressive government.

This complex vehicle Mayor Taylor has chosen to ride into the eighties, if all goes according to plan, will provide Westland residents with vastly improved police, fire and medical services. In addition, the mayor envisions reduced city taxes, reduced insurance rates, the elimination of insurance redlining, and cost efficient utility service, as the direct result of the full implementation of the 10-year program.

According to Taylor, the harnessing of new technology to better serve the community, will provide all these things and more. And the application of imagination only further expands the list of possibilities.

While we must concede that the mayor's plan much resembles the long-sought political pie-in-the-sky, a close look at the proposal supports the mayor's startling predictions. And we are impressed.

Perhaps few events so graphically demonstrate the fact that necessity is indeed the father of innovation. For while most elected officials were gnashing their teeth over an impending tax revolt, a revolt which promised to severely limit tax monies for new projects, Mayor Taylor was working on answers.

And the answer he arrived at is both remarkable and visionary. Rather than complain about new legislation which limited his ability to create new programs, he went to work and developed not only a plan that will ultimately benefit every resident of the community, but a plan that will actually generate new money.

Remarkable indeed in this era of "cost is no object government." At the heart of the Taylor plan is a Municipal Cable Television Authority.

That Authority will oversee the construction and operation of one of the first municipal cable television operations in the country to fully implement existing technology to solve many problems which remained until now unsolvable.

Not only will the citizens of Westland be provided with an opportunity to tie into a cable system providing a broad range of entertainment, but the cable system will transmit as well as receive.

And it is this two-way capability of cable television that has unlocked the doors to the future.

By adapting the system to new utility meters designed to feed the cable and central computer, the city will be able to remotely read all utility meters thereby saving the costs associated with the conventional method of walking the neighborhoods.

Savings will be passed directly on to the residents.

The income derived from the operation of the Cable Television operation which will provide entertainment, will be used to eventually fully fund the operation of the city's police and fire departments.

Surveys indicate that these systems produce hefty profits which will make this goal possible.

By fully covering the community with almost instant police and fire protection, the insurance risk factor in Westland will be reduced allowing the community to self-insure itself for normal homeowners losses.

This self-insurance will ultimately provide any Westland resident with the opportunity of buying his policy directly from the city and saving nearly 50 percent of that policy's cost.

The funding of the fire and police departments from the profits of the cable system will considerably reduce city taxes while at the same time, improve those services, and according to Taylor, will make Westland the safest city in the nation.

There is little doubt that Taylor's Westland plan to master technology will bring with it, a new era in municipal government.

For residents of Westland, the future is now.

For others, the example set by the Westland mayor should be used to encourage still further exploration of new concepts for improving municipal government.

Budget of '79-80 reviewed

By EDWARD E. MAHALAK
State Representative
38th District

This column continues a review of the State budget recently approved by the Legislature for fiscal 1979-80.

The Legislature, and particularly those of us on Appropriation Committees, made every effort to hold down the budget due to gloomy economic forecasts and the impact of the tax limitation amendment approved by voters last November.

The budget also reflected excellent cooperation between the Legislature and the Executive Office. The dollar figure for the budget adopted by the Legislature was very close to the Governor's recommendations.

One of the major appropriations is for the Department of Mental Health. The budget was trimmed by the conference committee which worked out House and Senate differences in the bill.

The final version came to $567.5 million, including $495 in State funds.

The largest adjustments were $9.7 million for staffing needs, $3.5 million for community mental health expansion and $3 million more for developmental disabilities facilities. A total of $6.4 million was removed from the bill due to availability of social services money.

The budget for community programs was set at $166 million, institutions for the adult mentally ill at $153 million, institutions for mentally ill children at $27 million, special facilities for the mentally ill at $20.3 million, and institutions for the developmentally disabled at $164 million.

Total 1979-80 funding for the Department of Public Health was fixed at $199 million, about half of it from the State general fund. Although the conference committee increased funding for dental care programs, it reduced spending in a number of other areas.

There were also conference committee cuts in the budget for the Department of Corrections, which in its final form came to $176 million in general funds. With the addition of federal and other funds, the total corrections budget reached $178 million.

The combined budget bill for the Departments of State Police and Military Affairs was finalized at $140 million, including $188.5 from the general fund.

The State Police portion of the bill totals $129 million, with $111.5 of that amount from the general fund. The largest single change the conference committee made in the bill was an increase of approximately $2 million for the Disaster contingency fund. Funds were also added for expressway patrols and for 24-hour patrols.

The final budget made no recommendation on salary increases for State Police troopers and sergeants, who won the right to collective bargaining in last November's election. The Legislature left the question of salary increases to the bargaining table.

The Military Affairs portion totals $11.5 million, with $7 million of it from the general fund.

The Legislature has a commitment to fund school employees retirement. That budget for the new fiscal year totals $453 million, almost all of it coming out of the general fund. Extra funds were added to pay increases in the cost of health care insurance. Without the increased appropriations, retirees would have had to pay the increased insurance rates.

Although the impact of inflation affected most budget bills, the one for the Department of Agriculture was set at nine percent less than the current year. It totals $36 million. The budget was trimmed despite increased funding for agricultural research.

The appropriation for the Department of Natural Resources was set at $128 million, with $49 million of it coming from the general fund. Although the conference committee made some major cuts in the budget, it did add money for an expanded waterways access site program.

The general government budget, which covers expenses for the Executive, Legislative and Judicial Branches and various state departments, totals $355 million, of which $213 million comes from the general fund.

The church may offer unconventional solution

Editor:

Solve the problem of inflation? Don't be naive Mr. Editor. Two hundred million people have had that on their minds for years now, and some are pretty good thinkers. There is no solution.

However the challenge is interesting and worth a good fight.

We've all heard a dozen time too many how to get more miles-per-gallon, how to heat water with sunshine, and how to insulate. The idea is to maintain the same style of living on the same money. A little silly when you think about it.

It's time to breakaway, brainstorm, use some unorthodox methods. For instance this water and sewer thing. Water rates have been going up, last week it was sewer rates, and probably next week it will be water again. There is a way to cut the water-sewer bill in half. In many homes over half of the water is used in flushing the toilet so how about a toilet that uses no water or sewer. To name a few that are available there is the clivis multum, the Bio-Recycler, the Carousel, and the Mulbank. These units are no relation to the backhouse or the chemical toilet and unlike the flush toilet that doesn't take away the odor, these composting toilets leave not even a whiff.

The problem: The County Board of Health will not approve of such a toilet. On the other hand they probably wouldn't know if you had one.

Another big problem is the Federal Income Tax. Sure your wages are up but that put you into a higher tax bracket didn't it? And at the same time higher prices found you with less spendable income. Well how about a legal way to reduce those taxes. Ever think you would like to start your own church? The Universal Life Church (featured on 60 Minutes) will ordain you, furnish credentials and all tax papers, and defend you in court if need be for a total investment of ten dollars.

You then form your church with a minimum of three members, the Pastor, a Secretary and Treasurer. Members can then legally donate up to 50 percent of their outside income to the church and take the corresponding tax deduction. The church can also pay the housing costs of the minister such as rent or mortgage payments, insurance, taxes, furnishings and repairs. It can provide the minister with a car and pay for travel and educational expenses. None of these expenses are reported as income.

The church can open its own bank account and the interest received is tax free. If the pastor dies the church simply appoints a new pastor and the church goes on without paying any inheritance taxes. This has been tested in court by the ULC and found legal. Otherwise there would be an impingement upon the guarantees provided by the First Amendment, the court found.

I don't practice what I preach, but maybe someday when I've been pushed too far...

You will eventually care!

Editor:

I give up my hard earned money for someone that means nothing to me? They are not my family.

Honestly speaking, some of these people are a little bit stupid, for they don't think it can hit them or happen to them or their family or loved ones.

But it can! Muscular Dystrophy plays no favorites. It doesn't hit just certain children or poor families. It makes no difference to this disease what color your skin is or how much money you have or what your last name might be. It hits everyone!

That's when people will start to care. When it hits them or someone close to them.

When they watch a perfectly healthy normal child or baby turn into a skeleton. A mass of skin and bones sitting all crunched up in the corner of his bed or wheelchair. Using all their strength they can muster to give you a half smile because you are there and you are someone who has cared.

To keep on standing by just watching their child finally lose the muscles to breathe the air it takes them to live and they finally give up the fight and God takes them and lets their little bodies cease to feel the pain that they had to live with every day.

In any case no matter how this happens, when it does, it is the hardest suffering that any parent has to go through. But they stand there and watch all this happen because like the way they use to feel with the not caring, there are still not enough people who do.

Fortunately, there are people who do care. People who give all their time or all their free time and love, and yes, even their money, to do what needs to be done for our kids.

To the people who do, this comes their own kind of reward, the satisfaction of knowing that they have done all that they can possibly do. To the people that as of yet still do not care.

Watch out!

It could hit close to home. And if and when it does you will understand this message completely. But, you can count on this one promise. Regardless of how or when or why, we will get you on our side. "YOU WILL EVENTUALLY CARE!"

Ask Carol Premo

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

Carol Premo, a Certified Social Worker in private practice in Belleville, Mich., will be presenting weekly answers to problems which may have been the source of either joy or pain for some of our readers.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Readers,

Lately I have received a number of requests to answer letters privately through the mail. Time does not permit me to do so. Also, it is valuable for others to read about your concerns through the column because they too may share those concerns. They will benefit from knowing they are not alone, and that there are positive steps they, too, can take.

If you are worried that those close to you will recognize your letter, try to delete or generalize information that is specific enough to identify you.

Carol Premo

Dear Carol,

I don't even know how to start this letter. This is the kind of thing that men complain about not women. I think maybe I'm sick but I don't know so I'm asking you. My husband (he's 32 years old) doesn't want to make love to me enough. We've been married 6 years and I feel like a freak.

My husband has a good job, high pressure but not long hours and he takes plenty of time to relax. I know it's not another woman because I know where he is all the time and besides he is not the type to run around and I think he does care for me. He is good and meets all my other needs. He is even affectionate — although not often. We have one child 5 years old and my husband loves him, too.

What can I do? You can see everything is fine except this one area. Don't tell me to leave him because I won't. But, is there some way to get him interested more than once a week. Maybe I'm just over-sexed — that's what he says.

Frustrated

Dear Frustrated,

No, I do not get the impression that you are over-sexed. Wanting to have intercourse more than once a week would not qualify for a problem label. In fact, there are wide variations in sexual desire that fall under the "normal" category. The important thing is that the two people involved agree as to what is enough.

It is also not true that it is always men who desire more sex. We get complaints from both sexes with about equal frequency. This is particularly true since the onset of the feminist movement with women admitting to their own sexual needs.

And so, if those two areas are not the problem what is? I do get an undercurrent of tension and frustration in the marital relationship. Frequently, when there is a breakdown in communication the first place it becomes obvious is in the bedroom. One partner or both tries to communicate the frustration, hostility, fear, etc., that cannot be communicated in other ways.

Have you thought of marriage counseling? A counselor can help with communication problems as well as sexual difficulties. If you haven't thought of it, I suggest you do and you can even go alone if hubby decides it's not "his" problem. A list of marriage counselors can be obtained by calling the Michigan Association of Marriage Counselors at 644-2984.

Miz Sophie revisited

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

Sophie Guzman was almost one hundred years old when I first met her. A fiery, tiny woman she still ruled the huge Oregon cattle ranch to which she had come as a bride, with an iron hand and an indomitable will.

"No one ever sez no to Miz Sophie," one of the cowhands said after she had told him to soak his head in the horse trough because it was filthy, and he had.

'Miz Sophie' had a colorful history, and there was nothing she enjoyed more than to draw up her chair close to the fire and sit there and rock until someone would ask her to tell them a story.

"I don't know no story," she would say.

"Tell us about the time the Indians kidnapped you." 'Miz Sophie' would rock harder and then with a twinkle in her eye and a big grin on her face she would tell us how when she was a little golden-haired girl "about four or five, I reckon, my pappy put us in a wagon and joined a wagon train for Oregon."

She didn't remember that the going was rough. The main thing she remembered was chasing butterflies over the prairie and how when the heat of the day and the long chase would "tucker me out, my pappy would hoist me up in the wagon and my mammy would give me to drink, and then I would fall asleep."

One evening the travelers had stopped for the day. The wagons were pulled into a tight circle and the women were busying themselves preparing supper while the men tended to the horses. The children were playing near the wagons when suddenly a wild whoop came down from the mountains and they were soon surrounded by wildly gesticulating, whooping Indians.

The Indians had apparently underestimated the strength of the travelers, for after much heavy shooting and yelling, they turned and left the wagon train alone. As one young buck swooped past a wagon he was peering out at him a little golden-haired girl and he coveted her. Reaching out his long arm he grabbed her to him and rode off into the night.

"I didn't scream nor nothin'," Sophie proudly recalled. "I knew 'twarn't goin' to make any difference. But I sure prayed a lot because I sure didn't want to live with no Indians."

Her prayers came true when one of the young Scouts attached to the wagon train took off after the Indians and trailed them for several weeks, until at last one night he found her and rescued her and took her back to her parents.

Thirteen years later, James Guzman went to Oregon and married the little girl he had saved.

"It was a mite romantic," she continued, "and we built us a beautiful log cabin. We was the only white folks for many a mile, but there was a lot of Indians."

"Weren't you scared..." we shivered when we asked her.

"Naw," she answered, and then laughing she told of the time when she had been standing in front of the fireplace making a stew.

"I heard something behind me and I turned and there was the biggest buck Indian you ever seed. He grunted at me and started toward me, but I just raised my big spoon and said, 'Git,' and he got."

"Miz Sophie" died shortly after she told us the story about the Indian "gitten" and they buried her under a tree a short way from the log cabin she had lived in as a bride.

"She's probably up in hevvin tellin' God how to run the place," one cowhand said as he stood with his head bowed and his cowboy hat held over his heart.

"Well, I'll tell you if someone gits up there she don't think should be there she'll just tell 'em to git, and I'll bet even the angels won't be able to stop 'em from gittin'," another answered as he turned away and walked back over a land that somehow seemed to sense that something was missing.

I was one of those little girls sitting beside the fire listening to the stories of "Miz Sophie" and I've never forgotten her. When something pops up in my life that I don't like I think of her brandishing her big spoon, and I say "Git," — and it gits.

Parental pitfalls

That first day of school

By SHERRY WAINES

Changes in one's lifestyle are not always the easiest things to accept. Some of us accept change easier than others, but not all of us can accept all forms of change all of the time.

The first day of school is one example of change that is easier for some people to swallow than others.

Depending on the individual the first day of school can bring on an anxiety attack weeks before that first day of school arrives and sometimes lasting weeks after. Others are able to accept this change without any anxious feelings whatsoever.

Teachers for one have been known to go into deep depression as August is about to turn into September. Who can blame them? After spending a summer of carefree bliss, only to have it end with the unknown approaching over the horizon. The unknown can be filled with fears — not knowing what type of monsters they will be expected to cope with all year long could easily try anyone's well-being.

One elementary teacher I know told me that every year, two weeks before school starts, she begins having nightmares.

Thinking that must be an absolutely horrible experience, I ask her if she ever considered changing her career. Her reply was "Oh No, Never!" "I love teaching and would never want to do anything else, besides I am always fine after the first day of school." "All I have to do is look each one of my pupils square in the eyes; once I know and can see for myself exactly what I'll be up against for the year I'm fine."

Parents have also been known to greet the new school year feeling pangs of anguish. I for one can speak from experience.

A few years ago as my daughters' first day of Kindergarten was fast approaching I found I was worrying myself to a frazzle.

The idea of having to send my baby off everyday for one whole afternoon five days a week to be cared and looked after by someone I didn't even know was beyond comprehension.

Naturally I didn't want to instill these fears in my daughter so weeks before school was to begin I started informing her about how she was going to love "Big Kid School." Her teacher (what ever her name was) would be wonderful teaching her all kinds of new and exciting things. The new children she would meet would become great friends. Plus she would learn how to read!

Because of my fears, I kept drilling all this garbage into my daughter's head, all she cared about was being able to finally ride the big yellow bus. I should have left it at that but NOOOOOO. By the time I got through with her, my daughter who up until that moment had never experienced an anxious moment in her life developed the nervous habit of twitching her nose and blinking her eyes.

Of course I then realized that I had actually been throwing all my fears and phobias onto her. It wasn't until then that I was able to take stock of the situation and see that the worst things that could happen to my daughter were nothing compared to the great things that she would experience by walking into that school. It didn't help, I was still a slave to my fears.

In spite of her mother's failings my daughter boarded her yellow bus that first day of school. While she was grinning, waving, twitching her nose and blinking her eyes I was standing on the corner trying to focus my camera through tear filled eyes. Her twitching stopped about the same time that my fears dissolved; a few days into the new term. To think of all that wasted energy spent worrying for nothing.

Children can also feel rather anxious about that first day of school no matter what the age or what kind of assistance they are receiving from their parents concerning this change. New teachers, new classes, new classmates, term papers and exams are not always met with overzealous enthusiasm.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could all eagerly look forward to the changes in our lives as wonderful adventures. Of course nobody ever said that the changes in life would be easy — but why didn't they?

Maybe if they would have we would all start to believe them.

MAC backs county

The Michigan Association of Counties (MAC) has thrown its support behind Wayne County with a resolution to Gov. William Milliken and the majority and minority leaders of the House and Senate, deploring the Governor's veto of funds that could have helped the state's largest county through its current fiscal crisis.

In an unprecedented action, the MAC Board of Directors, in addition to the resolution, also has urgently requested the Governor to meet personally with the special MAC Crisis Committee, a committee of legislators and Wayne County representatives "in an effort to resolve this crucial fiscal problem affecting more than one-third of the state's population."

The resolution specifically said: "Michigan Association of Counties deplore Governor Milliken's unwarranted veto of Senate Bill 167 which would have allowed the state to assume the county's court probation services and provide funds to support Wayne County's Circuit Court through the end of this fiscal year."

Copies were forwarded to the Governor and also to Bobby D. Crim, Speaker of the House; William Bryant, Minority Leader of the House; William Faust, Majority Leader of the Senate; and Robert Vanderlaan, Minority Leader of the Senate.

According to Raymond Kuhn, MAC director of federal affairs, the special Crisis Committee will be composed of MAC Board of Directors members, MAC president Thomas Cooper from Newaygo and Wayne County representative which probably will include Chairman Richard E. Manning and Commissioner Alex Pilch, chairman of the MAC Legislative Committee.

Manning said he was tired of talking to Milliken's "underlings" and would only talk face to face with the Governor when the latter decides to start talking facts instead of politics.

Kuhn said the resolution had been delivered to Milliken, "but," he added, "we don't always get a fast response from his office."

"that Wayne County is caught between the rock and the hard place. Milliken is trying to force the county to reorganize by amending Public Acts 319 which would eliminate several elected officials. The legislators aren't likely to vote for anything that will eliminate county offices, and the Governor isn't likely to give up trying to force the issue by withholding funds for Wayne County."

"You'd think that the legislators would jump at the chance to get off the hook by overriding Milliken's veto, but we haven't had a chance to count noses since they're all out on summer recess."

Pilch stressed the importance of speaking directly with Milliken and not with his office staff.

"Unfortunately," he said, "it will be the people that will suffer, not the officials, and the people of this county should know who's responsible for this situation, after all, they did support him at the polls."

"We've done everything the Governor has asked for in seeking reorganization, but we don't have control over his legislators."

Linton

"I can see where people might say it would be a conflict of interest, since he does do a lot of selling pitches for all those communities," Gorman said. "But I guess you just have to have faith..."

Linton said even though he finds information that overlaps, applicable to both Canton and, say, Wayne County, he does not charge twice.

"I don't charge double. If I find information for the county and it also applies to Canton or Westland then I just pass it on," said Linton.

He emphasized that he has never in his 10 years of experience as a consultant-lobbyist, solicited clients.

"Canton came to me," noted Linton.

"We do two things. We tell them about available grants and advise them of the positive and negative aspects of getting it, and the impact on their communities," said Linton.

Secondly, he said, his firm makes the necessary contacts with the influential federal lawmakers.

Daley, however, thinks a governmental mailing service, Congressman Ford's office and perhaps the federal printing office might better suffice.

"I don't see why we don't have Terry (Carroll) just keep in contact, and file the grants," Daley said.

Trustee Carol Bodenmiller said she had requested a detailed report and update of Linton's activities and his function for Canton, she has never received that report.

"When he came for a raise I asked for that, but I can't remember ever getting what I asked for. Something detailed was what I wanted," said Mrs. Bodenmiller.

She said she was curious as to whether it was humanly possible for Linton to do "a good job" for Canton, without hurting other communities, and vice versa.

Though she said she believes a mailing service would not suffice.

"There may be problems, but I don't think a mailing service is personal enough. I think we need a liaison but whether he is the best, I do not know," she said.

One of Linton's first clients was the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments, and though SEMCOG is a consortium of communities in the southeastern Michigan area, he represented the group as an entity, not each individual community within the group.

Prior to starting the group, Linton was the chief assistant to the late U.S. Senator Patrick V. McNamara, a Michigan representative.

"He has contacts that we'll never have," Gorman said. "He buys people a lunch or whatever it takes."

"We couldn't afford to send Terry there every week. Besides who would stay here to file and apply for the grants," Gorman said.

Someone must be responsible for filing the grant, said Gorman. That someone is Carroll.

"And someone must inform us that there is a grant," noted Gorman.

That someone is Linton.

Prep gridders put on working gear

Would you believe 1979 season is 14 days away?

Looking good

Attending 'High Exposure Camp' gave Romulus' 6-4 senior, David Casey, double exposure as he trained with some of the finest prep cagers in the state while college and university coaches across the country got a good look at him. And Casey didn't miss an opportunity to show off his moves. From an outstanding flock of prep cagers, Casey was named to the All-Star team made up of the top 10 players. His credentials included 220 points, one less than scoring champ, Marty Clary who happens to be the Clawson High head coach's son.

Would you believe that the 1979 high school football campaign is a mere 14 days away? That's all the time area prep coaches and their staffs have to get ready for the grueling season.

And, last Monday, the preps put on their football gear and got down to work in preparation for the opening day game scheduled for Friday, Sept. 7 for most of the area teams. Some teams will get their first taste of action the following day, on Sept. 8.

There will be at least one new head coach in the area. Belleville will be guided by Michael D. Colletta who has a rebuilding task ahead of him. Colletta inherited a team won one of its nine games last year, and one of its six encounters in the Suburban 8 Conference.

'High exposure'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

'High Exposure Camp' sounded like something one could be arrested for.

It isn't. In fact, of the more than 114 letters-of-invitation mailed to high school basketball players more than 100 responded and attended the week-long camp.

Romulus' Dave Casey received one of those letters and so did his coach, Ron Hanna. Both traveled to Spring Arbor Community College to take part in what Hanna quickly points out was, "a tremendous experience for all of us."

What 'High Exposure Camp' is, in reality, an opportunity for the top cagers in the state to play against, train, and inter-relate with their peers around the state. And while they are doing their thing, some of the finest coaches in the country, men like MSU's Jud Heathcote, Toledo University's Bob Nichols, Grand Valley's Tom Villeneuve, Albion College's Mike Turner and others discuss some of the finer points of the game.

"It gives young basketball players 'high exposure' to the top college and university coaches in the country," Hanna continued. "And I don't have to tell anyone in the news media how important that is for an athlete."

The camp is the brainchild of Matt Hart, who runs a news service that publishes the ins-and-outs on prep cagers, the important agate that most of the readers don't see but coaches thrive on — and direly need for their recruiting.

Hart teamed up with a scribe from The Free Press, Nick McCabe, to put on the star-studded show. Some of the high school coaches on hand to help with the week-long camp included Hanna, Mt. Clemens' Al Snyder, Taylor Center's Jim Ryan, Jim Hess, of Gabriel Richard in Ann Arbor and others like Charles Coles, and Ray Lovvrens.

A typical day in the life of a high school cager at the camp went something like this: at 7:30 a.m., wake-up call, 8 a.m., breakfast, 9 a.m., roll call in gym, and 9:05 a.m. mini-lecture on team defense and practice, at 10 a.m. league games and 11 a.m. Pro Keds shooting demonstration, noon — lunch and 1:05 p.m., Coach Jud Heathcote, who analyzed his MSU national championship team; 2:15 p.m., league games and at 3:15 p.m., one-on-one competition. In the evening the cagers could either use the swimming pool or relax.

This went on for five days, and obviously the guest speaker would change each day.

Casey, who is 6-4 and whom Coach Hanna will probably build his team around this season, impressed a score of college scouts who buzzed in and out of Spring Arbor Community College's facilities during the week. And some of the reasons why he was impressive — he scored 220 points, second best among the 100 cagers there. He also was the 10th best rebounder in the lot and his moves have greatly improved. He was named as one of the top 10 players at the camp.

"I had coaches from all over the country come up and ask about Dave," Hanna said. "He played in 14 games and he really looked good."

With all that talent packed in one gym, who was responsible for whom?

"That's a good question," mused the Eagle coach. "Do you know I got my first taste of drafting players. I know now how the big time coaches feel...hey, it wasn't easy. What we did was let the kids scrimmage and during that time we were allowed to draft. We had to trust our own intuitiveness — and, believe me, that's not easy."

How did Hanna do in the draft?

Well, his team wound up second best, losing the championship 56-50.

When you get three kids together, you're bound to have some problems — what happens when you invite over 100 of them to gather in one spot?

"I don't think we had one incident which involved discipline or anything of that sort, and I feel that I am speaking for most of the people who were there — it was really and truly a great experience."

That's understandable, after all, didn't newspaper people put it on?

Before we forget, want to thank staffer Jim Bradley for handling the sports desk during my two-weeks vacation. As always, Jim did a tremendous job — and I sometimes wonder why he gave up this foolishness for that straight news stuff.

Don Foley, Romulus' head football coach, thinks his team is ready for a scrimmage. And if any varsity grid coach in the area feels the same about his own team, contact Foley at the high school.

It's time for physicals

Stevenson Junior High School in the Wayne-Westland Community School District will hold physical examinations for all athletes who wish to compete in fall sports.

The examinations will be held at the junior high, beginning at 4 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 30. There is no charge for the examination, a school spokesman said.

All eighth and ninth grade boys and girls who are going out for sports should report. Fall sports include football, girls' track, girls' basketball and boys' swimming.

For further information about the physicals, please telephone the school at 595-2000.

Mickey's breezes to title

It was a rerun of the regular season.

And playing the major role in the softball script was Mickey's Back Door which slammed the title door on Little Caesar's and won a lopsided 32-0 victory over their rivals to pick up the playoff championship.

Mickey's, who dropped a mere two games during the regular season, scored in each inning and was never seriously challenged during the runaway contest. Pacing the champs' offense were Gary Mooney, Dave McGlenahan, and Ed McCahill who each drilled six hits. Jim Wetmore blasted two home runs for manager Dale Ochodnick's team which retained the title they had captured a year ago.

Meanwhile, over in the men's Class B circuit, Angies Country Inn, a second place finisher during the regular season, swept through the division playoffs with an untarnished record and earned the playoff crown.

Angies met and turned back the Merchants in the finals, 10-9.

A 11-5 won-lost club during the regular season, Angies had defeated newly-crowned regular season champ, Jake's Lounge by the narrowest margin, 11-10.

In the finale, Angies used a well-balanced hitting attack and superb defense to reach the top. A key 7-run first inning opened the title door and carried them all the way. Big Jim Pennington was super on the mound as he continually checked the Merchants' battery. He also came up with several spectacular defensive gems that erased scoring threats. Gary Siweveck, Wayne Butzin, and Lorne Longwish paced the winner's attack with two hits each.

In the women's division, Lion & Sword has the crown. Compiling a 14-2 regular season record, the champs got past Marias Bakery 12-8 to add the playoff title to their long list of accomplishments this season.

Ruth Richardson led the way with four hits and Stella Roginski provided the power. She homered in the first inning to ignite her team. A 7-run opening inning was more than enough to convince Marias that it was no match for the champs this year.

Betsy Gwizdz and Louise Gwizdz also chipped in with three hits apiece as Manager Al Comstock's team made off with two first place trophies this year.

In the women's "A" circuit, Rusty Nail-McMurray swept through the playoffs undefeated, surprising Gould Realtors, 3-2, the regular season champ to win the playoffs championship.

Gould took an enviable 12-3 record into the playoffs. But that didn't impress Rusty Nail's hurler, Aline Chapoton who held the champs to a mere seven hits. Ms. Chapoton, Brenda Pollock, and Diane Kasper each connected for two hits for the playoff winners.

Earlier in the playoff series, the champs ran up against Gould and eked out an important 13-12 victory.

Westland John Glenn, Livonia Franklin and Churchill — are again pre-season choices to win or be in the thick of conference championship races.

Churchill and Coach Ken Kaestner reached the post-season Class A playoffs last year after finishing the campaign with a perfect 9-0 record.

They wound up losing to a speedy North Farmington contingent, 14-3. North went on to surprise state title favorite, Birmingham Brother Rice, 26-7, before the Northwest Suburban Conference champs were upset in the finals by a relatively unknown, Traverse City team, 20-14, at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Other defending state champs are Warren Woods (Class B), Forrest Hills Northern (Class C) and St. Martin DePorres (Class D).

Who will own the coveted conference and state titles in 1979?

The answer to that excitement-packed question will be revealed sooner than you think.

Grapefruit League champs

Allen Park '9' shatters Wayne playoff dreams

Wayne's dreams of a Class E Inter-City baseball championship turned into a nightmare as Allen Park eliminated the local Babe Ruth entry 8-1 to advance to the finals to be held in Livonia.

Troy Lindon, who turned in a superb pitching performance against Roseville to lift Wayne into the semi-finals, and Dean Saranas, could not stop the hard-hitting Parkers who jumped out in front 3-0 in the first inning and were out of sight after two innings, 6-0.

Saranas worked five innings, gave up seven of the eight runs on seven hits. He struck out four and walked six. Lindon pitched two hitless innings, whiffing one and allowing an equal number to reach base on balls.

Dennis Alvis hurt the Wayne pitching staff as he drilled a double and a pair of singles to drive in two runs. Steve Vernak started on the mound for the winners and he gave up one of the three Wayne hits. John Marandy tossed the last three frames.

Against Roseville, Lindon was unbeatable. He notched nine strikeouts, walked two and gave up two harmless hits. Wayne got on the board in the first inning when they scored twice, then, after Roseville scored in the second to make it a 2-1 ballgame, Wayne replied with four runs in the fifth and two more in the sixth.

In other Class E games, Livonia blasted Inkster 13-1 to qualify for the finals, while Inkster started the tournament with a 9-0 victory over Dearborn thanks to Dennis Mallari's two-hit pitching. Mallari was backed by Mike Tescke, Ted Glynn and Ken Gaffney's bats. Each contributed two hits.

Meanwhile, Wayne's Class F entry got past a stubborn Dearborn club 5-3, but was knocked out of the Little League post-season competition by a strong Saginaw team which humbled Wayne 19-0.

Don Votjkosky threw a four hitter, struck out seven and walked three to earn the decision over Dearborn. Jeff Dangman, who walked twice and scored on both occasions, Tom Zeronas and Larry Climie each had run-scoring singles.

At AAU swim meet

Kozar strikes gold

The Michigan Long Course AAU Swimming Championships held recently in Southfield apparently was made to order for Wayne's 10-year-old Danny Kozar who looked impressive in several events.

Kozar, a member of the Bulldog Aquatic Club and coached by All-American, Kevin Dunworth, of Dearborn, struck gold in one individual event and found a gold medal as a member of the winning 200-meter freestyle relay team.

Kozar turned in a sparkling 42.5 in winning the 50-meter breaststroke and also teamed with Bob Cooksey, Jim Kovach and Joe Albert to win the 200 freestyle in 2:17.77.

Before the competitions ended, the Wayne swimmer also had five other trophies.

Danny was runner-up for the 100-meter breaststroke, finishing in 1:35.1, then wound up fifth for the 50-yard freestyle thanks to a 33.5 effort. A 1:15.7 was the seventh best time in the 100-meter freestyle and a 3:12.3 earned for the young tanker an eighth place in the individual medley.

The Bulldogs' 10 and under boys team also claimed the team championship in their age category.

Belleville's best Babe Ruthers

Wearing smiles after a long season, Draw-Tite earned recognition as the best Babe Ruth team in the Belleville League. They won 19 of their 21 games this season to capture the championship. Members of the team are (first row, from left) J. Osborne, A. Quilton, T. Samsel, D. Smith,

C. Boyer, K. Ross, B. Melodosian and R. Templeman; second row are assistant manager J. Mercurio, G. Brinkerhoff, S. Villa, J. Grant, D. Overholt, J. Mercurio, manager S. Villa. (Not available at the time of the photo was player G. Vickers.)

Perfect champ Warriors end year with 14-0

What will the Westland Warriors do for an encore? Sweeping all 14 of their games, the Warriors clinched the Westland Parks and Recreation Minor Blue Division men's softball championship.

The Warriors will take an untarnished 14-0 record into the playoffs in hopes of adding a second crown to their already perfect season.

Meanwhile, Jake's Lounge got a slice of the runner-up spot by whipping Interstate Transmission 12-6 to finish the season with an 11-3 record. Also boasting the identical won-lost ratio is Ken's Standard.

Jake's didn't waste any time with the transmission people who trailed 5-1 after two innings, then decided to make a game of it in the third and fourth innings before dropping their fifth game in 14 starts.

Rick Powell was the losing pitcher. He gave up three hits apiece to Steve Basasharce and Jim Kolodziej who each had a shot of hitting for the cycle but missed when they failed to homer. Al Pulk collected two hits, both singles, for the winners.

Corky Hays held the losers to eight hits to get credit for the decision. Chet Pickens, who had a triple, Dan Amann, and Steve Berry each had two safeties for the losers.

In other action, Playmate Lounge didn't look like a seventh place team as it pounded out 23 hits to bury Local 25, 24-7. Loser Jake Hamlin couldn't silence the bats of Dick Morpheu who had two homers in his three hits, Ed Klonowski who chased home three runs on four hits and Mike Webb who laced a pair of two-baggers.

Winning hurler John Harris limited the cellar dwellers (1-13) to nine hits. Mike Walton, Davie Zeig and Jim Warner each got two hits.

In their final appearance of the regular season Roeder's Tropical came alive and won a 21-7 decision over Jon's Goodtime Bar who was out of it after two innings when they trailed by nine runs.

Skip Johnson's three singles and a triple drove in three of Roeder's runs, while Brady Rice and Tom Scarow each had three hits off of loser Terry Taft.

Gary Kowalske gave up a pair of doubles to Norm Boguslaw who counted two RBIs, and two hits to Mike Holton, who had a single and double. Cliff Williamson doubled for the losers.

New golf leaders

Glen Ponte and John Seewald moved into first place in the Canton Township Recreation Department's men's golf league after looking up at the coveted berth for the last two weeks.

Sweeping four of five points from Jim Canring and Jim Young, the new leaders have compiled nine points, a mere half-point more than runners-up Dan Riggs and Gary Rehberg. Riggs and Rehberg (Continued on 3rd Sports)

Last inning rally seals Studio's unbeaten season

A dramatic last of the seventh rally broke a one-all deadlock and lifted Studio Lounge to a 2-1 victory over Johnny's Shell last week.

The victory sealed a perfect 14-0 season for Studio Lounge's women's softball team in the Westland Parks and Recreation League. It was the second year in a row that the undefeated champs have won the championship.

Sharon Turflinger, who fired a two-hitter, chalked up the victory. She found herself in trouble in the seventh when Johnny's scored their only run. In the bottom of that inning, Studio came back and won it thanks to Wendy Reynolds' run-scoring triple.

Heather Domke accounted for three of Studio's nine hits as she sliced three singles. Teammate Nan Hewson chipped in with a pair of hits while Ms. Roberts finished the game with a single and triple.

Loser Judy Kaley pitched well enough to win but didn't get the necessary hitting support. Studio scored their first run off of her in the bottom of the third.

Mary Shaw got both of Johnny's hits.

In other action, J & D Auto scored four times in the top of the seventh to turn back Alberta Thomas, 8-3. The victory enabled J & D to move into a two-way tie for second place with the losers whose record dipped to 11-3 on the year.

Alberta Thomas collected 11 hits off of winning hurler Shelly Arner, but just couldn't connect with runners aboard. Ms. Arner gave up three singles to Karen Lowrey and a single and triple to Vicki Pier. Dawn Johnson latched on to a single and double.

J & D got to loser Sheryl Chomiuk for 12 hits with Lisa Porcara knocking in two runs thanks to a single and double. Liz Owczarzak and Rita Woods split four singles between them.

In the only other game, cellar-dweller, Players' Lounge, snapped a 13-game losing streak at the expense of eighth place Jamies, 11-9, as the winners erupted for five runs in the bottom of the sixth to earn the seasawing affair.

Players Lounge tilted the scoreboard for five runs in the first inning before losing pitcher Tammy Mauno settled down. Jamie's came back with two runs in the third off of winner Lynn Dupek who surrendered the lead in the fifth when Jamie's broke loose for seven runs. Trailing 9-6 going into the bottom of the sixth, the previously winless club scored five big runs to win it.

Barb Wilcox and Blance Richards each had two hits and socked homers off of Ms. Mauno who served up four hits to Tonya Riggs. Riggs counted a pair of two-baggers in her day's work.

Ms. Dupek had problems with Debbie Whitson who came up with three hits and three RBIs and missed hitting for the cycle when she failed to homer. Teammates Judy Griwki and Cindy Scibboras each had two hits.

Wayne's Reid no-hits Trenton, 3-0

Wayne unleashed Larry Reid against Trenton last week and the deceptive hurler turned in a no-hitter en route to a 3-0 victory.

Reid notched a hefty 14 strikeouts and was equally potent at the plate where he contributed two hits, a double and a single which drove in a pair of runs.

Reid's teammates came up with three runs on four hits in the first inning and the Wayne pitcher took his cue from there and tossed a near-perfect game. He got the defensive backing of his team.

Wayne advances to the semi-finals where they will meet the representatives of Livonia.

Westland Party captures crown

Striking for six runs in the third inning, Westland Party Store overcame an 8-7 deficit and went on to defeat Jamie's 19-12 to capture the 1979 Westland Parks and Recreation's Minor League White Division men's softball championship.

Winning pitcher Ron Halis was struck by a first-inning lead but failed to hang on to it as Jamie's countered with an 8-run seventh inning to go ahead 8-5. The reigning

In Red Division

Johnnies 76 wins it all

With two victories to spare, Johnnies' 76 was crowned the 1979 Westland Parks and Recreation's Minor Red Division men's softball champions last week.

Johnnie's ended the season by coasting past a helpless County Mounties contingent 26-4 as the champs erupted for 14 runs in the first inning. There was never any doubt about the outcome of the game after that inning.

Don Yancik held the Mounties to a mere six hits, two of those by Dan Slayton who blasted a fifth inning homer. Gary Hallabin and Rick Rynicki each had run-scoring singles for the losers.

Meanwhile, Rocky Feister hit for the cycle off of loser Rob Blackmore who gave up five RBIs to the slugger. Gary Sharp belted a pair of singles and a couple of doubles, while John Stivers had three singles for the newly-crowned champs. Sharp and Stivers each drove in three runs.

Fiesta Lanes received the dubious honor of becoming the league's "bridesmaids" after finishing the season with a 15-8 victory over last place Extra Point Bar. Fiesta brought the curtains down to a 11-3 won-lost regular season.

Winning pitcher Paul Campbell gave up 10 hits, three of those to Gary Morton who drilled a round-tripper and accounted for three runs batted in. Cliff Morgan chipped in a pair of singles in a losing cause, while Terry George drove in a run with his lone hit of the day.

Fiesta got its hitting millage out of John Sharp who connected for a pair of doubles and drove in an equal number of runs. Dave Mars drilled three singles and Brian Markovich had a single and double for the winners.

In the only other game, Bruce's Towing erased a 3-0 deficit with a five-run second inning, then scored four runs in each of the fifth and sixth innings to down Golden Spike Lounge 13-7.

Greg Lewan, Joe Mifsad and Dan Catenucci each collected two hits off of winner Les Warden who gave up a total of 11 hits. Loser Curtis Cardenas had his problems with Darryl Perkins who tripled and homered and had three RBIs for the winners. Warden also aided his cause with a pair of singles and a double while Yves Szmansky drilled two hits.

Champs post 11-1 record

It's a title year for WAOA

It took a six-run sixth inning for WAOA to break away from J.C. Blue Chips and clinch the 1979 Westland Parks and Recreation Department's Community Organizational men's softball league championship.

An upset would have forced WAOA, which finished the regular season with a 11-1 record, to play runner-up, the Post Office, a 10-2 game, for the championship.

And it appeared as if the Blue Chips had upset on their mind as they scored a first inning run to take the lead, then relinquished it momentarily 2-1 in the next inning but tied it up at 2-2 in the bottom of the second inning.

The champs took the lead for good with a run in the third, picked up two more in the fourth before going on to ice it with those decisive six runs in the sixth.

Chuck Pickering, charged with the loss, gave up 16 hits, three of those to Bob Kost. Brian Krist homered for one of his two hits and drove in three runs while the champs also received two hits from Dennis Shields.

Kost was the winning pitcher and he equally divided six hits among three players — Ken Riggs, Jim Poole and Pickering who tripled.

In their final encounter of the regular season, the Dad's Club scored four runs in the fifth inning to edge Westland Hockey 6-5 to win a special playoff for the coveted No.4 spot. That will enable them to play in the post season tournament that pits the top four teams in the league for the playoff championship.

Hank Blayer was the winner but he gave up one more hit (8-7) than loser Randy Griffin who served up two hits to Mark Sigler and RBI safeties to Mike Paz and Norm Swope.

Ron Tryanski's collected three hits, but Dan Cronan who had a homer and single to drive in four Westland Hockey runs, led the assault on Blayer who also delivered a run-scoring single to Bill Jones.

In another thriller played in the Minor League White Division, All-Star Sports scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh after McCurdy's Optical took a 7-6 lead in the last inning to pull out a cliffhanging 8-6 verdict over their arch-rivals.

It was nip-and-tuck all the way as the All-Stars jumped out in front 4-1 after two innings, but McCurdy's tied it up in the top of the fourth only to fall behind 5-4 in that same inning. The two teams exchanged a run each in the fifth before the All-Stars came up with their two game-winning runs in the seventh.

Gary Swain chalked up the victory and helped his cause with three singles and a double. Ernie White and Phil Parsons gave him ample hitting support as they chipped in three and two hits respectively.

Loser Ed Spontack wasted a 20-hit attack which included Joe Reynolds's three hits and three hits by Tom Dilauro who homered. Roy McCurdy had a pair of singles and drove in a run.

Canton tennis tourney brings out 80 players

Eighty players battled their opponents and the elements in hopes of winning trophies in the second annual Canton Parks and Recreation Open Tennis Tournament held recently at Canton High School.

And when the swinging and sweating was over, Richard Jackson of Detroit defeated Dustin Mann of Canton in two sets by identical 6-1 scores to win the men's single crown. Jackson reached the finals by winning a tough semi-final match with Steve Tihanyi. Tihanyi surprised the champ by taking the first set 6-1, but Jackson recovered in time to sweep the next two by 6-0 scores. Mann got to the finals by turning back Joe Kotlinski, 6-3 and 6-4.

Meanwhile, over in the women singles' competition, 16-year-old Janet Ray of Livonia stunned Westlander Roberta Topolsky in three sets in what could be described as a perfect final. Miss Ray came out on top 7-6 in the first set, dropped the second, 6-4, but rallied to win the third and the match 6-4.

"Both players were very evenly matched and used superb playing tactics," said Jeff Holderness, tournament manager. "I'm sure the crowd enjoyed watching these two outstanding players."

It took a marathon 2½ hours to decide the men's doubles championship. And that accolade went to Joe Kotlinski and his partner Dale Linkous, both of Detroit, who stopped Mann and John Miller in the finals, 6-2, 4-6, and 6-3.

The women's doubles' title went to Roberta Topolsky and Marsha Lukowski who easily handled Holly Hendikson and Colleen Kennedy 6-1, 6-1.

In the mixed doubles, Craig Malkowski teamed with Roberta Topolsky, both Westlanders, to defeat Leon and Carolyn Drew of Detroit in two sets (7-5, 6-1). Both teams had to struggle to reach the finals as each came out with three set victories over their respective opponents. Malkowski and Topolsky won a cliffhanger over Ron Huddleston and JoAnn Colovas of Garden City 3-6, 6-4 and 7-6.

Bob Nawrocki of Westlander who is a member of the Wayne Memorial varsity squad picked up a first place trophy in the boys single by jolting another prep netter, Shaun Rafferty of Plymouth 6-0, 6-0 for the title.

The talented young Westlander

MR. AND MRS. KURT S. KOTLARCZYK

Paradise Island in Bahamas site of 8-day honeymoon

The Belleville United Presbyterian Church was reserved for the recent summer wedding of Kristine Kobie and Kurt Kotlarczyk, both of Belleville. The first to be held in the historic building, a replica of the famous Martha-Mary Chapel at Greenfield Village, the ceremony was conducted by The Rev. Robert McCreight at six o'clock in the evening.

The double ring rite joined the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kobie of 45784 Willis Rd., Belleville, and the son of James Kotlarczyk of 22755 Martinsville Rd., Belleville.

Some 150 relatives and friends witnessed the exchange of vows and rings before an altar appointed with an all-white arrangement of carnations. Lace and baby's breath formed the focal point on the main pews as the bride approached the sanctuary with her father.

Music for the occasion was played by Robert Morris at the organ and sung by Carolyn Phillips and Race Smith.

For her wedding day Kristine selected a gown of polyester and rayon with a chiffon overlay. The little fitted bodice was designed with a high lace collar above a sweetheart illusion neckline frosted with lace and seed pearls. The lace motif was repeated on wide cuffs which accented the full clear sleeves.

She wore a fingertip veil of silk illusion with a delicate lace edging and carried cascading white baby roses, carnations, stephanotis and English ivy.

As her sister's honor attendant, Karen Kobie of Belleville donned a Nile green dress with a full length pleated skirt and matching chiffon capelet. Accessorizing her gown were a matching picture hat and white lace fan holding pale green cymbidium orchids.

The quartet of bridesmaids in yellow, peach, pale blue and pink ensembles like that of the maid of honor, were Kathy Kobie, another sister of the bride; Diane Pavelka and Jane Salutz, both of Belleville; and Kimberly Bauman of Ypsilanti, the junior attendant.

The bridegroom chose his cousin, Frank Strimpel of Toledo, Ohio to be best man. Others on the esquire side were Jim Younglove of Flat Rock; Jerry Younglove of Carleton; John Strimpel, another cousin from Carleton; and Jimmy Kotlarczyk of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Kobie wore for her daughter's wedding a pale blue gown with a qiana pleated skirt and long chiffon sleeves. Her corsage was a matching cymbidium orchid.

Following a reception for some 175 guests at the PNA Hall, the newlyweds departed for an 8-day honeymoon at Paradise Island in the Bahamas. They are now at home at 411 Rustic Lane East, Belleville.

The new Mrs. Kotlarczyk is a graduate of Belleville High School currently working as a secretary at Parkwood Manor Apartments in Belleville. Her husband attended Airport High School in Carleton and is labor foreman for Spence Brothers General Contractors in Ann Arbor.

The rehearsal party was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mack, Wilson marry; honeymoon in Toronto

MR. AND MRS. HARRY R. MACK JR.

A wedding trip to Toronto, Ont. followed the Aug. 4 wedding of Cynthia Lee Wilson of Ypsilanti and Harry Russell Mack Jr. of Belleville. The young couple, who exchanged vows at the United Presbyterian Church of Belleville, are now making their home in Ann Arbor.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Wilson of 8303 Huron River Dr., Ypsilanti, the bride was given in marriage by her father. For her wedding day she chose to wear a toe-touching gown designed by Phyllis from the House of Bianchi. A scooped lace neckline, capped sleeves and chapel train were styling details on the little fitted creation.

A fingertip veil and bouquet of white roses, gardenias and baby's breath completed her bridal finery.

Preceding the bride and her father to the sanctuary where The Rev. Robert G. McCreight conducted the six o'clock rite was Patricia Wilson of East Grand Rapids who was her sister's maid of honor.

Others in the bridal coterie were Cathy Agerson of Anderson, S.C., another sister of the bride, and Carol Holland of Westland, sister of the bridegroom.

All three appeared in primrose frocks and carried bouquets of assorted summer blooms.

The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Mack of 45605 Harmony Lane, Belleville, asked David Lambert of Ypsilanti to be best man. Groomsmen included Michael Herold of Ypsilanti; Brian Holland of Westland, brother-in-law of the bridegroom; and Curtis Mack of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom.

Some 165 relatives and friends congratulated the newlyweds at their wedding reception which followed at the Washtenaw Country Club.

The new Mrs. Mack is currently a senior at Eastern Michigan University where she is pursuing a business administration degree. Her husband is enrolled at the University of Michigan Dental School.

The rehearsal dinner, also held at the Washtenaw Country Club, was hosted by the bridegroom's parents, the senior Harry Macks.

For the one o'clock luncheon, the hostess carried out the garden theme by serving chicken salad in small lined flower pots each wrapped in yellow paper, tied with bright orange yarn and centered with a fresh yellow mum which later was added to the flower-filled vase at each table.

Card bingo followed with each guest taking home a prize. The women, who'd driven in from Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Tecumseh, Rochester, Wayne and Belleville, then watched as the honoree unwrapped her assorted household gifts. MR. AND MRS. HARRY CHARETTE

Dinner-dance marks Charette's 40th year

A dinner-dance reception at Thomas' Epicurean House in Trenton marked the 40th wedding anniversary of Harry and Margaret Charette of 18824 Savage Rd., Belleville.

Hosting the Sunday celebration were the couple's children: Allan and his wife Margaret of Whittemore; Leonard of Ypsilanti, and Eugene and his wife, Margo of New Boston.

Among the guests attending from East Tawas, Plymouth, Sterling Heights, Rochester and Royal Oak were the "bride's" brother, Louis Hahnke, who had been best man at the 1939 wedding, and Florence Guthrie, the maid of honor. The 100 relatives and friends who turned out to congratulate the Charettes later danced to the music of Art Wyse whose group also acted as strolling musicians during dinner.

The big day began for the Charettes when they renewed their marriage vows before the Rev. Alexander J. Wytrwal at St. Stephen's Catholic Church during the 11:30 a.m. mass.

Mrs. Charette, who was Margaret Hahnke when she married on July 29, 1939 at St. Gabriel Catholic Church in Detroit, chose for her special day a pink qiana frock with a draped neckline. She also wore a white orchid pinned at the shoulder.

The Charettes, who have lived in the community for 35 years, are members of the Huron Township Senior Citizens Club and St. Stephen's Catholic Church. Mr. Charette retired from his executive position at the Ford Motor Company in 1970 after 35 years employment. Besides their three sons, the couple has four grandchildren on their family tree.

Housewife's value being recognized

The housewife is getting more recognition for her financial role in a family, reports the American Council of Life Insurance.

A woman no longer has to hold a job to be entitled to a pension, says the Council. She can be a housewife and get one.

She is, in fact, now eligible to join with her husband in establishing their own private pension plan if her husband isn't covered by one at work.

Today, a housewife and her husband can set up an Individual Retirement Account and contribute up to $875 each, for a total of $1,750 annually.

This money may be deducted from the couple's annual income at tax time and there will be no taxes owed on its interest until it is used at retirement.

Savings institutions, mutual funds and life insurance companies are the principal sponsors of these plans, but since there are variations, the Council suggests you shop carefully for the one which best suits your needs.

DETROIT EDISON OFFERS EIGHT IMPORTANT TIPS TO HELP YOU GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR AIR CONDITIONER THIS SUMMER.

Fortunately, Detroit Edison customers have plenty of electric power available. Now and in the future. It's the result of planning, development and investment and the fact that over 84 percent of Detroit Edison's power is generated from coal, the nation's most abundant fuel. The balance is generated from other fossil fuels. Even so, none of us should waste energy. So follow these tips and stay cool and comfortable all summer long.

1 Keep your air conditioner on a moderate setting. When leaving home, set the temperature higher.

2 Pull down shades and close draperies to keep out the hot sun.

3 Be careful not to block the flow of cool air.

4 Shade windows from outside with ventilated awnings, solar screens, trees or shrubs.

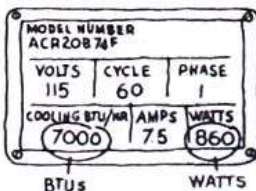

5 Keep air filter, coils, registers and return ducts clean.

6 Flush out hot attic air with a powered ventilator.

7 Use heat and humidity-producing appliances — such as your oven, washer and dryer — early in the morning or in the evening.

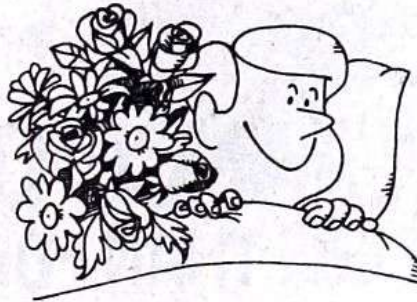

8 If you're buying a new air conditioner, you'll save electricity if you select one with an energy efficiency rating (EER) of 8 or higher. The EER is figured by dividing the BTUs by the watts.

MR. AND MRS. TERRY R. EDWARDS

Newlyweds make home in Indiana

White carnations and red roses adorned the altar of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Belleville as Cindy Marie Townsend and Terry Richard Edwards, both of Belleville, exchanged nuptial vows and wedding bands.

The Rev. Walter Henning presided at the summer ceremony at six in the evening before some 175 assembled guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Townsend of 40220 Robbe Rd., Belleville, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edwards of 46000 McBride, Belleville, are parents of the young couple who are now living in Indiana.

Escorted to the altar by her father, Cindy appeared in a formal gown of ivory bridal satin and chiffon trimmed with ivory lace. Her lace-bordered veil drifted to chapel length over the train on her dress.

Completing her ensemble was a colonial bouquet of red roses, daisies, forget-me-nots, lilies of the valley and orchids.

Deborah Lee Zander of Belleville was maid of honor in a mint green floral print gown accented with a matching cape. Her hairpiece was an arrangement of red and white roses surrounded by daisies and baby's breath which matched the flowers in her bouquet.

The trio of bridesmaids in identical outfits included Cindy Townsend of Belleville, sister-in-law of the bride; Sandy Cook, and Michelle Townsend, the bride's sister, all of Belleville.

Four-year-old Corrine Townsend and her 7-year-old brother, David, carried out the roles of flowergirl and ringbearer, respectively. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ora Townsend Jr. Stephanie Edwards, the 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Edwards, also served as flowergirl. Both youngsters donned floor-length mint green dotted swiss frocks trimmed in white. The baskets they carried were filled with red roses, daisies, forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Best man was Tracy Cook of Belleville, Jerry Townsend, brother of the bride; Timothy Watson of Flint and Eric Edwards of Belleville, brother of the bridegroom, served as ushers.

At the reception, which followed at the VFW Hall in Romulus, the bride's mother greeted the 175 guests in a toe-touching gown of violet lace while Mrs. Edwards, the bridegroom's mother, received in a peach-colored formal gown. Both were presented with corsages of assorted blooms.

1978 graduates of Belleville High School, the newlyweds honeymooned for a week in northern Michigan. The bride was employed at General Finance in Belleville and her husband is serving with the U.S. Army as a military policeman.

The rehearsal party was hosted by the Richard Edwardses at their home on McBride Road.

Wedding pending

MISS BRIGGS

The engagement and approaching wedding of their daughter, Colleen Lynn Briggs, and David Scott Rider are announced by Richard and Hedy Briggs of 2035 Ide Ave., Ypsilanti.

The prospective bridegroom, the son of William and Betty Rider of 5875 Big Pine Ct., Ypsilanti, graduated in 1978 from Saline High School and is now working for Coca Cola in Ann Arbor.

The bride-to-be, who will be a senior at Belleville High School in the fall, has set an Aug. 31 altar date at Trinity Baptist Church in Ypsilanti.

It's important

The right pan for the right chicken

Correct cookware is as important to the success of any dish as the ingredients themselves. The wrong pot can spoil good food as surely as a bad egg can, and the wrong pan can reduce a beautiful roast to a shriveled mess.

Oven Fry Coating for Chicken actually fries chicken in the oven, using a small amount of oil. This oven method of preparation has distinct advantages over the traditional skillet method — less turning, less time and less splatter. However, the splattering problem is even more controllable if the right size pan is used. Package directions call for a 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Not to be confused with a cookie sheet, the jelly roll pan has sides 1 inch high all the way around which prevent any oil from spilling out and allow maximum control over the degree and evenness of browning.

For fried chicken that's crisp on the outside and moist on the inside, try Oven Fry in a jelly roll pan.

GRAVY WITHOUT EFFORT

For all those who prefer fried chicken crispy, crunchy and unadorned, there are just as many who feel that fried chicken without pan gravy is heresy.

Oven Fry Coating for Chicken has taken most of the work out of preparing fried chicken — less oil, less splatter, less cleanup — and provides simple directions for pan gravy as well. After chicken pieces have been removed from the pan, blend 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour into pan drippings. Add ½ cup water or milk. Cook and stir over medium heat to dissolve brown particles. Gradually stir in 1 cup water or milk and continue stirring until smooth and thickened. Season to taste and strain, if desired.

Webster defines gravy as "something got without effort." That's exactly right with Oven Fry.

DINNER FAVORITES

Favorite relatives arrive unexpectedly and you know they are fried chicken fanciers. But, traditional fried chicken for a crowd is a bother. There's the quantity of oil, the heavy skillet, the constant turning of just a few pieces at a time, the mess, the splatter and, of course, the inevitable cleanup.

With Oven Fry Coating for Chicken, the work is cut to a minimum and double batches can be prepared and fried in the oven simultaneously. Whether you prefer the Home Style Flour Recipe or the Crispy Crumb Recipe, prepare the chicken according to package directions. Two packets of the coating mixture are sufficient to coat five pounds of cut-up chicken pieces. Pan size is all important and be sure to use 15x10-inch jelly roll pans with sides about 1 inch in depth. Once the chicken is ready for the oven, most of the work is over. At the halfway cooking mark, exchange positions of pans from top to bottom, after turning individual pieces of chicken. When frying time is completed, remove top pan from oven, move bottom pan to top rack and allow to brown for a few minutes to ensure crispness.

Crisp outside — moist inside. Favorite chicken for favorite people.

Please include your number

PLEASE include a telephone number with any news item you send in or drop off at the office. Make sure it's a number where you can be reached during working hours (9 a.m. to 5 p.m.) It is important since quite often stories need to be verified or spellings on names have to be checked.

REMEMBER . . . a phone number, please!

Add years to your life with this 5-point formula

Want to live longer? You might have to change your personality, reports the American Council of Life Insurance, but it could add years to your life.

That was part of the findings of a University of Wisconsin study of more than 2,000 Americans who lived longer than average.

Life Formula

Dr. Robert J. Samp, who conducted the study, said the results pointed to this five-point formula for a longer life:

- Accommodate yourself to life's challenges.
- Avoid prolonged stress.
- Develop outside interests.
- Keep working at either paid or volunteer activities.
- Eat and drink sparingly, but with enjoyment.

Dr. Samp told the Council his research showed "There is a definite personality type among people blessed with longer life."

Among their traits are "middle-of-the road moderation, serenity and an interest in the future."

Some items that may be "instrumental" in prolonging life, according to the doctor include:

- Sleep. "It is essential for survival, and the older you get the more you need."
- Contentment. "Seek reasons to be happy instead of courting the internal damnations that beset you."
- Moderation. "Smoke within reason

Limit drinking to social occasions and use it as a relaxant rather than a crutch."

No Fighting

And above all, he adds, "Don't fight your enemies, outlive them." That long life is no accident is also the conclusion of another study of Americans over 100 years old by the American Medical Association.

When asked what kept them young, the centenarians told the AMA: an easygoing disposition, a quick sense of humor and a desire to keep alive and active.

Gassers honored at family reunion

Former Romulus residents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Gasser, were in from McKenzie, Tenn. for a visit recently. In honor of their return, 14 of their 18 children got together for a family reunion at Elmer Johnson Park in Romulus on July 28.

Despite a rainy morning, the day turned out to be cloudy but warm for the 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. activities which included games and visiting.

On hand to welcome the Gassers "home" (they had lived in Romulus for some 20 years before moving south in 1965) were 31 of their grandchildren and eight of their great-grandchildren.

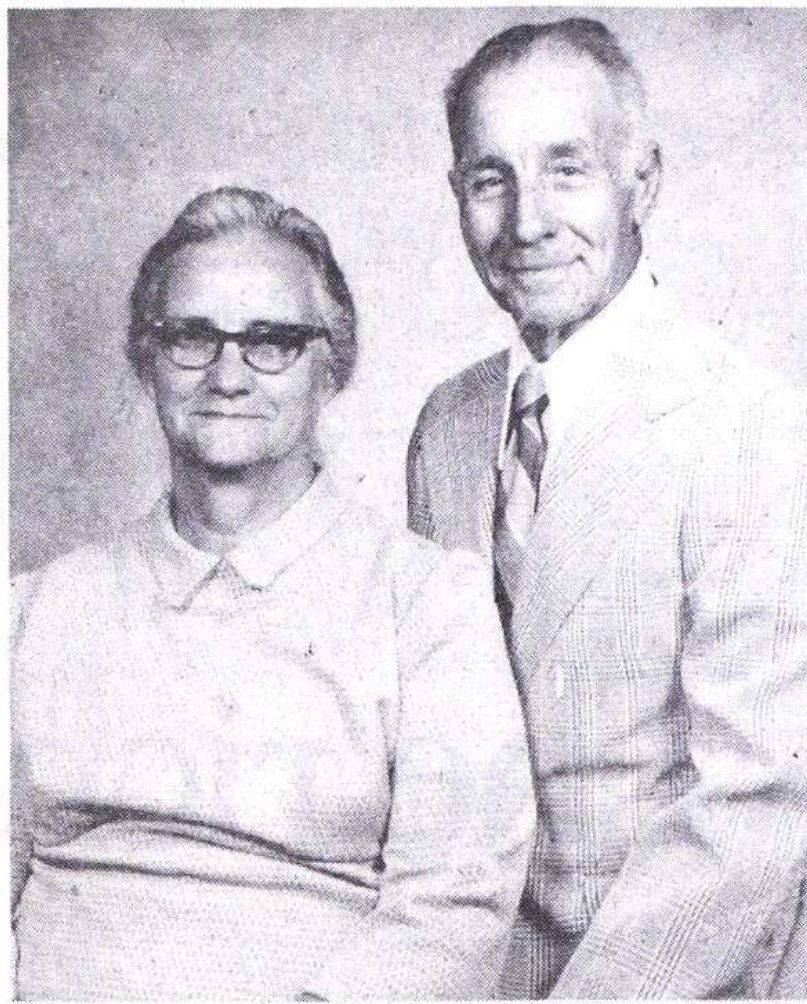

The list of attendees at the potluck picnic included four families from Arizona: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Martin and daughter of Phoenix; Mr. and Mrs. Wally Householder and family of Elfrida; Mr. and Mrs. John Martin of Glendale, and Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Benedict of Scottsdale.

Arriving from California were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Martin of Baldwin Park and Clyde Gasser of Norwalk and from Minnesota, Mrs. Juanita Robinson and daughter and Kenny Gasser, all of Minneapolis.

Still others renewing old family ties were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Watkins and their two daughters from Gleason, Tenn.; Mrs. Brenda Vanderberg and family of Rapid River, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Henry and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Henry and family, Carl Gasser and sons and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Mullens and family, all of Belleville.

Completing the roster were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Householder and sons of Clinton; Mrs. Ruth Ann Allen of Ypsilanti and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry and family of Romulus.

Close to 100 relatives plus several friends enjoyed the all-day activities.

to her great-great grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Alexander of Carbon Hill, Ala.

True or false?

The newcomer, who was welcomed home by her 3-year-old sister, Heather Renee, put in her appearance at 1:06 a.m., weighed 8 lbs. - 1 oz. and measured 20½ inches.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Sherer of Romulus and Mr. and Mrs. Ian Smith of Belleville are the proud grandparents. News of the baby's arrival also went out to Jasper, Ala. to two sets of great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Deason and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Deavours, and

• Life insurance pays off only if you die.

• Only healthy people can get life insurance.

• Most people have more than enough life insurance.

• Inflation has raised the cost of life insurance.

All of these statements, says the American Council of Life Insurance, are false and are among the most common misconceptions that the average person may have about life insurance.

Warners keep up busy summer pace

Among the recent activities of the Dennis Warner family was attendance at the Gerry family reunion held July 29 at Prospect Park in Ypsilanti. Mrs. Warner (Kim) is a descendant of the Gerrys on her maternal grandmother's side. She and her husband and son enjoyed renewing old acquaintances with others from Winona Lake, Ind.; Hudson, Adrian, Ypsilanti, Livonia, Detroit and Belleville.

The Gerry family history has been traced all the way back to England, 1691. Elbridge Gerry, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, governor of Massachusetts and vice-president of the United States, is a fourth generation Gerry dating from 1691. His grandson, Elbridge Thomas Gerry, was the founder of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The day after the reunion Dennis Warner marked his 32nd birthday which was celebrated during a visit Aug. 3-5 at the home of Mrs. Warner's parents in Roscommon.

And on Aug. 11 Dennis John Warner II's second birthday was highlighted by a party given by his parents. Guests were Sue and Bethany Elie of Belleville; Timothy, Phillip, Debbie and Christy Elie of Smithville, Mo., and Carol and David Svacha of Romulus.

It's a boy — James Donald for Sweets

The birth of their first child, a son, James Donald II, is being announced by James and Michelle Sweet of 8809 Hudson, Romulus.

The new heir, who arrived at Beyer Memorial Hospital in Ypsilanti at 4:27 p.m., on Aug. 11, weighed 7 lbs. - 4 ozs. and measured 21 inches.

He is the first grandson of Merry Laginess of Romulus and Bill Laginess of Southgate and the first great-grandson of Geraldyn Sweet of Trenton.

Melissa Ann new addition to clan

Michelle Milton is happily telling those she meets about the arrival of her new baby sister, Melissa Ann, who made her debut Aug. 11 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

The 6 lb. - 8 oz. infant is the second daughter of Mac and Diann Milton of Ypsilanti. Her proud grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ladd of Belleville and Mrs. Marlow Milton of Detroit. Edyth Hale of Melvindale is the baby's 86-year-old great-grandmother.

Never too early to plan for retirement

Those authorities who recommend that you begin planning for retirement at middle age could be mistaken.

Strictly speaking, says the American Council of Life Insurance, they may be a little too late with their advice.

According to the Council, it's never too early to start planning for retirement. The earlier the better.

However, that's not how it works out in real life.

According to a 1977 Council survey, only about 1 in 3 nonretired workers has given a great deal of thought to the subject.

If you want to start planning now, the Council has compiled a list of important items to consider, as follows:

• Your age or the number of years you must work before becoming eligible for a pension.

• How much money you can expect on a regular basis when you retire.

• The provisions in your pension plan for early retirement.

• Other work-related benefits that may continue after you retire, such as health insurance.

• The Council points out that if you are self-employed or if you work for a company where no pension plan is provided, you can set up your own private plan.

• Start exploring activities that can replace working as a source of satisfaction when you retire.

• Prepare emotionally for the change in your life style.

• Make provisions for special problems of poor health that may unexpectedly develop.
